Below $1 a Bushel.
One Problem Ignored.
Why Not Hire Gunmen?
No God Exists, for Russia.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

YESTERDAY the price of wheat dropped below $1 a bushel which offsets a good deal of talk about relieving the farmer.

That drop, although the market recovered later, worried many Americans, including millions of farmers, and some politicians that expect the farmers to vote the Republican ticket automatically each time.

WE HAVE a prohibition problem, and Heaven knows we talk about it. We appoint commissions, shoot bootleggers, they shoot enforcement agents.

The Senate investigates and discusses.

On the front page you see "Whisky, Prohibition, W. C. T. U., Anti-Saloon League."

WE ALSO have a serious problem of unemployment, and unfortunately it is getting bigger.

Nobody in the government seems to know that there is any unemployment problem, or to be actively interested in it.

No commissions are appointed to inquire into it.

In England enough to live is given to every man out of work, where we give him nothing, not even friendly interest or good advice.

FRANK McERLANE, under the name of "Charles Miller," lay in a private hospital, his right leg in a cast, hung high in the air.

When active, McErlane has the reputation of being one of the most efficient gangsters and gunmen in Chicago.

As he lay in his cot, other gangsters climbed the fire escape to his floor and opened fire. McErlane replied with an automatic hidden under his pillow.

The gangsters replied, leaving three bullets in McErlane, who probably will die.

IN OLD days, Italian cities hired and paid well the most savage fighters they could find, and built magnificent statues in their honor. The one to Colleoni is the finest equestrian statue in the world. These fighting gentlemen sold themselves, after careful bargaining, to various municipalities.

With our crime wave too much for the police, it might be worth while to hire some fighters of the McErlane type to work on the side of law.

RUSSIA continues her systematic drive on religious belief and the right to religious belief. More churches, synagogues are confiscated or destroyed, and many Mohammedan mosques.

Russia apparently objects to the suggestion that anybody except Lenin might have something to do with the management of this earth and the universe around it, whether it be Jehovah, the Christian God and Trinity, or Mohammed's Allah.

EIGHT thousand enthusiastic atheists volunteered to tear down a monastery.

Art treasures in the churches confiscated are to be changed into money and the money used to buy tractors for Russian farms.

RAMSAY MacDONALD, Britain's Labor prime minister, warns against too much criticism of Russia, based on "religious persecution" reports, suggesting that facts be first ascertained.

MacDonald reminds the people that interference from the outside can only make the religious persecution more severe.

RUSSIA, evidently believing that trouble is coming, and expecting an attack by "capitalism" is building community houses for the people with poison gas proof shelters attached.

If you say a thing often enough you finally believe it.

Russians really believe that "capital" plans to attack them.

CAPITAL never attacks anybody, although sometimes it hires other to do the attacking.

But, war now is known to be unprofitable even for the winner. Capital doesn't go into unprofitable enterprises, even to spite Karl Marx or Lenin.

LITTLE homes with poison gas shelters attached would not appeal to Americans as much as the ordinary American home with garage attached.

But if this country does not wake up, and arrange adequate defense in the air and under the water, instead of asking Britain "please what may we do?" some Americans may wish that they had a gas shelter instead of a garage.

NEW YORK is mildly interested in a young murderer who calls himself James Baker, or James Bakerien.

With dead bodies thrown out of automobiles after "a ride," bombs exploding, and similar features of the crime wave, it is hard for an ordinary murderer to arouse interest.

THIS particular young man admits that he poisoned seven or eight people because he was interested in seeing them die slowly.

His physical strength is interesting also. To prove it, he tore a New York telephone book in two.

Try that, to know how strong he is.

SOPHIE NOWOSIELSKA

WAR HEROINE, SOLDIER, HERE

Lieut. Sophie Nowosielska, Polish woman soldier who was wounded in action, doesn't know how many war decorations she owns.

"Some say 11," the lieutenant says, "some say 12. What difference?"

Lieut. Nowosielska, Polish aristocrat, fought against the Ukranians and Bolshevists in 1919. To enlist for service she disguised herself as a boy.

SPEAKS TONIGHT

She came to Pittsburgh today to speak tonight at the banquet of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Military Order of the World War, in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association.

She came to America six months ago to join her husband, an athletic instructor at Cambridge Springs.

Not given to the frivolous, the lieutenant is not interested whether girls are wearing long or short skirts or smoking cigarets. She wants to learn gymnastics, the better to return soon to Poland.

TAXI DRIVERS WAIT PEACE PROPOSAL

Cab Company President Here With Peace Conference Due to Resume With Mayor

Terms on which the taxicab companies agree to settle the strike will be submitted to the men at a meeting late today in Mayor Charles H. Kline's office.

Ernest H. Miller, president of the Parmelee Transportation Company, owner of the Yellow and Green Cab companies, arrived in Pittsburgh today "on business." He said he did not know whether he would attend the conference.

Mayor Kline announced today's conference after the adjournment of an all-day session in his office yesterday, attended by counsel for the cab companies and the striking drivers' committees and counsel. None of the conferees would venture an opinion as to the probable outcome of the meeting today.

MAYOR EXPLAINS STAND

"The company's attorneys are to draft a statement of what they will stand for," Mayor Kline said. "This is to be submitted to a committee of seven drivers. After they have studied the terms they are to meet again in my office.

"I want my position clearly understood. I am not arbitrating this strike. As mayor of Pittsburgh I represent all the people. The men asked me, as mayor, simply to act as an intermediary in this matter. This I have done and will continue to do, hoping that reason and common sense will prevail in its ultimate outcome."

COMPANY STATEMENT

E. S. Higgins, vice president of the Parmelee Company, issued a statement after the meeting, which he did not attend, saying:

"The conference between the company's attorneys and a committee of former drivers

SNOOK'S FINAL HOPE RESTS IN GOVERNOR

Counsel to Meet Executive Tomorrow for Final Plea To Escape Chair Friday

International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 26.—The final attempt to save Dr. James Howard Snook from the electric chair will be made tomorrow.

Gov. Myers Y. Cooper and the State Board of Clemency will meet at 11:30 a. m. to hear the last plea for the former Ohio State University professor, convicted of slaying Theora Hix, 24-year-old co-ed, and sentenced to die Friday.

E. O. Ricketts, chief of Dr. Snook's defense counsel, County Prosecutor John J. Chester, Jr., members of the attorney general's staff and members of the Board of Clemency will attend the meeting.

The conference was set for today, but was postponed at the request of Attorney Ricketts, who told the Governor that he desired an interview with Dr. Snook before taking the case before the Board of Clemency for review.

APPEAL LOST IN COURTS

Dr. Snook lost his final appeal in the courts yesterday when the United States Supreme Court rejected his application for a review. Attorney Ricketts is carrying the case to the Governor and the Clemency Board for a review of the evidence in an effort to obtain commutation of the death sentence.

Previous refusals of Gov. Cooper to stay execution gave Snook's counsel little hope of success.

Dr. Snook still was sleeping, or feigning sleep, when a reporter sought to interview him in "death row" at 11 o'clock this morning.

WOMEN ASK TO SEE DEATH

Penitentiary officials announced that they had been swamped with requests from women, who begged to see the ex-college professor pay the supreme penalty for the murder of Miss Hix.

U. S. MAY CLOSE GRAIN PITS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(INS.)—While pleading its support to the Federal Farm Board in the battle over wheat prices, the Senate this afternoon called upon the Secretary of Agriculture to say whether grain exchanges can and should be closed temporarily as a means of stabilizing the grain markets.

Senator Heflin (Dem.), of Alabama, sponsored the resolution and it was adopted without a dissenting voice after senators assailed grain dealers and grain speculators as conspiring to wreck the government's farm relief program. Charges were made that grain dealers have gone even into foreign markets and sought to depress world grain prices solely to smash prices in this country.

The preamble of the resolution referred to charges that "the price of cotton and wheat is now being generally depressed by harmful speculation on the cotton and grain exchanges." It added that this "harmful speculation has beaten the price of cotton and wheat down below the cost of production."

G.O.P. Mayoralty Nomination Candidate Stricken Down On Bench; Family at Side

Judge Richard W. Martin is critically ill with pneumonia at his home 5807 Stanton avenue.

His son, Richard McFall Martin, a student at Princeton University, has been summoned home. Two other sons, William and Bruce Martin, are at home.

Judge Martin did not feel well last Thursday, but forced himself to attend court. That evening he went to bed, and pneumonia set in last night.

His condition became critical today.

A relative said he was delirious much of the time and that the customary treatment for pneumonia was being given.

The physicians in attendance are Drs. C. B. Schildecker and R. T. Hood.

Judge Martin was a candidate for Republican nomination for mayor in the primaries last autumn. Before going on the bench he served as a member of the Public Service Commission. Previously he was city solicitor under the administration of Mayor William A. Magee.

JURY ACQUITS KING AIDS

Abraham Weinberg and Sol Rosenberg, vice investigators for the late Citizens League, today were found not guilty of conspiracy to indict, but ordered to pay the costs, by a jury in Criminal Court which deliberated two hours and a half.

The two men were brought to Pittsburgh by William L. King during his investigation of vice for the Citizens' League in 1927. Although King was never apprehended after his sudden disappearance, Weinberg and Rosenberg were charged with having conspired with King to have four persons indicted for violation of the liquor laws.

CLUNK PROSECUTOR

A separate indictment against Rosenberg charging larceny of cuff links worth $100, a passport and other papers worth $3,000 from the apartment of Samuel Korman, Craft Apartments, is to be tried later.

Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk prosecuted the case, and William H. Coleman and J. F. Frank represented the defendants.

It was charged that liquor bought in Homestead was labeled as having been purchased at the places of Maxie Friedberg, Milton Jaffee, Gertrude Cahill and Mary Snyder.

"Those tags were out on the car when friends borrowed it. They never told me about them," Joyce told Barry, according to the latter.

Barry said Joyce's car was wrecked last night. Where, he didn't know. He added that Joyce has until March 3 to visit the court and tell his story.

MERRY DEL VAL DIES IN ROME

ROME, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Cardinal Merry Del Val, former Papal secretary of state and archpriest of St. Peter's for the last 15 years, died today from heart disease during an attack of appendicitis.

The cardinal, who was 65, was stricken suddenly ill yesterday and grew worse during the night. Finally an operation was deemed necessary. Osservatore Romano this afternoon said that the cardinal died during the operation itself.

Police Seize Communist In Meeting Hall Row

Pat Devine, Communist leader, was arrested today on Stanwix street near Liberty avenue, when, police say, he refused to move on and urged others to remain in front of Walton Hall.

A meeting, scheduled for the hall, was the only one of half a dozen that approached realization. Others slated for plants in the district this morning were attended only by police details, who waited in the rain for anticipated excitement. "Called on account of rain" was given as the reason for the cancellations.

Devine, arrested by Acting Lieut. Hugh Lavery and City Detective Edward Harkins, was booked in Central Police Station on a charge of interfering with an officer.

About 30 workers attended the meeting. John Kasper and Pat Cush, speakers, urged workers to join the Trade Union Unity League. Another gathering is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon. The workers are preparing for an international demonstration on March 6.

Actors' Equity Inquires Into Gangster Extortions

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Actors' Equity announced today that it is conducting a formal investigation of complaints by several Broadway stars that, while playing in Chicago recently, they have been forced to contribute money and free performances for the entertainment of Chicago's gangsters.

Instructions have been sent to Frank Dare, Equity representative in Chicago, to look into the matter and report back to the governing council of Equity.

Equity said today that it was not at liberty to give out the names of the stars who have registered complaints with Mr. Gillmore. But the list of those reported to have been threatened by Chicago gangsters includes Francine Larrimore, Groucho Marx, Eddie Cantor, Phil Baker, Jack Pearl and Joe Frisco.

Several stars playing in Chicago during the Christmas holidays, it was stated by Equity today, were asked to contribute to funds and to buy tickets for benefits which they knew were non-existent.

One report is that Eddie Cantor, while playing in Chicago in "Whoopee," squared himself by giving a performance gratis in a cabaret conducted by Ralph Capone, brother of "Scarface Al," after which he was given a strong-arm bodyguard to protect him from rival gangsters.

PROHIBITION LEGISLATIVE FAILURE, HOUSE HEARING TOLD

REV. RYAN ASKS FOR REPEAL

Declares Hoover Is Trying To Force Moral Issue Upon American People

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP.)—Prohibition was portrayed as a legislative failure and President Hoover and his attorney general, William D. Mitchell, were accused of committing an excess in utterance in trying to force a moral issue upon the people in testimony given the House Judiciary Committee today by the Rev. John Augustine Ryan, director of the social action department of the National Catholic Welfare Council.

Appearing as a witness at the committee's hearing on proposals to repeal the eighteenth amendment, Father Ryan said he had accepted the dry law with loyalty and "looked upon the experiment with sympathy," but now he wished to see the statute abolished.

BUTLER HEARD

His testimony had been preceded by that of a psycopathic physician from Chicago, while statements previously had been presented from a university president and a member of the authors and artists committee of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. All had given a discouraging picture of conditions under the dry law.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, through Chairman Graham of the committee, presented a statement arguing the Eighteenth Amendment had violated the constitution and demanding its outright repeal, while Wallace Irwin of the authors and artists committee said it was his "earnest prayer" that the "iniquitous amendment be nullified, as he failed to see its benefits."

Dr. Francis J. Gerty, head of the Psycopathic Hospital in Cook County, Ill., where Chicago is located, asserted a material increase in alcoholic cases had resulted under prohibition.

ALL FARCIAL

Wilton J. Lambert, Washington attorney, described prohibition enforcement in the National Capital as farcial, and declared anyone could get a drink who wanted one. Drinking among young people has enormously increased, he said.

Shortly after Father Ryan concluded, the committee recessed over the luncheon hour, having arranged to hear W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad and Republican national committeeman from Pennsylvania, in the afternoon.

Pierre S. du Pont, chairman of the board of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company, was on the Witness list today but committee members said he probably would not be reached until tomorrow.

VETS' FINANCE REVISIONS O. K'D

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—A series of amendments to the World War veterans act which will carry a $100,000,000 a year additional government expenditure, were approved today by the House Veterans Committee.

The bill, sponsored by Chairman Johnson, of the committee, represents a compilation of recommendations of the Veterans' Bureau, the American Legion and other veterans' organizations.

The "presumptive clause" would cover additional disability claims amounting to $76,000,000 per year; another provides elimination of the power of the comptroller general to reverse decisions of the Veterans' Bureau.

was continued this afternoon in the mayor's office. The meeting adjourned shortly after 4 p. m. with the understanding that it would resume tomorrow afternoon. The participants agreed that at this time no statement would be made."

The Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, and chaplain of the striking drivers' committee, was barred from the conference yesterday afternoon. He did not accompany the committee to the morning session, which started at 11 a. m.

HOPE FOR AGREEMENT

He appeared with the strikers when they returned for the afternoon session at 3 p. m. When he started into the Mayor's private office with the committee he was stopped by Edward Garlitz, one of the Mayor's secretaries, who murmured:

"Just a moment, Father Cox."

In a few minutes A. T. Siford, chairman of the strikers' committee, came out of the office and talked quietly to Father Cox. After Siford went back into the Mayor's office Father Cox said, when asked if he were to take part in the conference:

"They do not want me in at this stage of the proceedings."

Father Cox stayed in the outer office until the meeting adjourned. Then he was called into Mayor Kline's office for what Mayor Kline said was "a personal talk."

Siford and Leonard Mazer, counsel for the strikers, said after the meeting, that they "hoped the meetings with Mayor Kline would result in something definite."

MYSTERY MOVE

Mystery veiled a reported move of a group of men today in the Yellow Cab garage, 208 South Highland avenue, for the purpose of demanding arbitration of the cab drivers' strike. A mysterious spokesman for the group, who refused to identify himself, declared they were striking drivers and that they were dissatisfied with the secret manner in which negotiations for settlement were being conducted by the executive committee. At the garage it was stated the spokesman was a carpenter and not a cab driver and little significance was given his statements.

According to the guard at death row, Dr. Snook retired about 11:30 o'clock last night. The former college professor spends most of his time reading, the guard said.

Many Bibles have been mailed to the killer from people in various parts of the state and spiritual literature and pamphlets are coming in at the rate of at least 50 a day.

Prison officials said Dr. Snook had read the Bible through at least twice since he entered death row. He spends the rest of his time reading current magazines and newspapers.

An undercurrent of excitement and tenseness is pervading this city. The Snook case is discussed on every hand and penitentiary officials are making arrangements to keep in check the crowd expected to storm the penitentiary Friday.

Only six newspapermen, representatives of three local papers and of the three news services, will be allowed to witness the execution.

MELLON URGES BRANCH BANK RESTRICTION

Letter to House Committee Advocates Curb by U. S. to 'Definite Economic Areas'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Secretary Mellon wrote the House Banking Committee today that in his opinion branch banking was sounder than chain or group banking, "but that even branch banking should be limited to definite economic areas."

"As to what those economic areas should be," said the treasury head's letter, "I am not prepared to state at this time without further study or thought."

ASKS TIME FOR STUDY

Mellon was to have appeared as the second witness in the committee's study of the nation's banking structure, but he said he would prefer not to testify until he had opportunity "to study the facts which I hope your committee will develop."

"May I add," he wrote, "that I think it fortunate that your committee has undertaken this study at this time, and that I am confident that much good will be derived from a careful ascertainment of all the facts in connection with the movement which has been proceeding with great rapidity in the banking field."

REPORT QUOTED

The letter quoted at length from the secretary's annual report for the fiscal year 1929, in which he said "the development of branch banking which is permitted by existing legal arrangements has facilitated the adaptation of banking facilities to the requirements of urban areas."

The report also recommended a careful study of branch banking.

eral Farm Board, to aid in controlling prices.

Farmers, it is believed, were favorably impressed with this, the government's first opportunity to show the power it can wield in an important national farm crisis. Heretofore, farmers in many sections had openly criticized the ability of the Farm Board to aid them.

Noon prices for wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade showed gains of 1⅛ to 3½ cents from yesterday's close and the market showed signs of continuing higher. March wheat was quoted at $1.07½; May, $1.11⅛; July, $1.13¼, and September, $1.14⅛.

BROKERS PROTEST

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 26.—Telegrams of protest at the action of the Federal Farm Board in buying wheat at from 10 to 15 cents above the market quotations were sent to President Hoover today by several private grain brokers in this section.

Up to noon today representatives of the Federal Farm Board had purchased 55 cars of wheat on the Kansas City Grain Exchange.

ACTION RAPPED

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—George Gano, the largest independent grain elevator operator in Kansas, today protested to President Hoover against what he termed the "confiscation" of his business as a result of an order of the Farmers' National Grain Corporation yesterday that wheat would be purchased only from co-operative elevators.

PAROLE SOUGHT FOR CAUFFIEL

HARRISBURG, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—The state Board of Pardons today heard an application for pardoning of Joseph Cauffiel, former mayor of Johnstown, serving two years for extortion and conspiracy in receiving tribute for offering police protection to gamblers.

Several members of the board, including Lieut. Gov. Arthur H. James and Attorney General Cyrus E. Woods indicated they were reluctant to interfere with the sentence imposed by the Cambria County Court and decisions of the Superior and Supreme Courts sustaining the verdict.

Charges that the trial and conviction of the former official were the results of a frame-up and political differences were made and denied by opposing counsel in the case.

John M. Freeman, of Pittsburgh, retained for Cauffiel, said: "If this man can be sent to jail on the testimony of two self-confessed gamblers then no public official is safe because he can be framed."

Taking the opposite stand, District Attorney D. P. Weimer, of Cambria County, declared "there was no frame-up. There was no politics in the matter. There were other witnesses besides the two gamblers and it was not the gamblers' testimony alone that convicted the mayor."

REBELS HOLD DOMINICAN CAPITAL

Dramatic Ride of Young Envoy on Peace Mission Assures Americans' Safety

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Insurgent forces today captured the fortress and public buildings of Santo Domingo, thus consolidating their position throughout the Dominican republic.

President Horacio Vasquez, whose efforts to succeed himself in the coming elections were largely responsible for the movement against the government, took refuge in the French legation with Vice President Alfonseca, who offered his resignation soon after the rebel movement began.

There was no bloodshed or loss of life during today's operations by the insurgents, and the city was quiet.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—John Cabot, 28-year-old secretary of the American legation in Santo Domingo, today reported "good prospects" of an agreement between the Dominican government and the rebellious forces opposing it.

Charles B. Curtis, the American minister, cabled that Cabot, who was sent on a mission of mediation, returned to the capital city yesterday evening bearing proposals made by the leaders of the revolution.

CABOT'S RIDE DRAMATIC

Terrified parrots, chattering among the royal palms, exalted natives peeping from thatched huts, and the roar of the open cut-out of a red roadster attended young Cabot's 220-mile ride for peace.

State Department men who have lived long years in the revolution-rent island republic were able today to piece out that picture from the reports of Minister Curtis.

When the minister decided to attempt conciliation, he dispatched Cabot, his legation secretary and a scion of the famous New England Cabot family, to Santiago, the rebel headquarters.

Santiago lies 110 miles from Santo Domingo. Three mountain ranges lay in Cabot's path and two intervening valleys. There were reports of guerilla fighters waiting in ambush to fire on travelers.

MAKES RECORD DASH

Cabot jumped into the red roadster. The 100 miles, which fast drivers make in four hours, he covered in three.

Then came the parley. He talked to the rebel leaders, suggested they arbitrate instead of fight, told them the vice president had resigned in compliance with their demands and was assured that American citizens would not be molested.

Back to report to his chief, after six hours of reckless driving, the news he brought caused Senora De Vasquez to leave the legation shelter and President Vasquez himself to prepare for a peaceful settlement of the governmental difficulties.

100 SHOTS FIRED

Reporting the insurgent occupation of Santo Domingo, Curtis said in a cablegram dated 7 a. m., today, that the opposition forces entered the city at 5 a. m., and that he afterward heard a sharp fusillade of 100 shots lasting about "a quarter of a minute." He added that "moderate quiet now prevails."

The insurgents, 2,000 strong, entered the city at 5 o'clock this morning, signalling their entrance by firing volleys into the air. They were given an ovation by more than 10,000 persons of the capital's population.

Count's Claim on Ileana Scorned in Rumania

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—The recent assertions of Count Alexander Von Hochberg that his betrothal to Princess Ileana of Rumania had not been broken have had a cold reception in authoritative circles here who consider them preposterous. The Count is at present in France.

All photographs of Princess Ileana and Count Von Hochberg showing the two together have been ordered seized, but the government is officially keeping silent about the broken engagement and has decided to suppress all discussion of it.

The master of ceremonies in the royal household has lost his post because of the incident, and the Rumanian minister to Berlin, who is said to have been told to investigate the rank to which the Count's birth entitled him, is reported to be in disfavor.

Call to Victim's Widow Traps Auto Suspect

A mysterious telephone message to Mrs. Virginia Barkenbush, of 311 Killbuck street, Glenfield, led to the arrest of Charles Belmont, 25, of 3410 Bates street, as the slayer of her husband, Charles Barkenbush, 33, who was killed by a hit-and-run motorist on the Ohio River boulevard at Dixmont on the night of February 2.

Belmont was held for the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter by Justice of the Peace V. H. Paschold, of Edgeworth, last night.

Several days ago Mrs. Barkenbush was called to the telephone by a man who refused to give his name and who inquired if anyone had been arrested for the death of her husband.

She reported the incident to Police Chief Samuel Graham, who testified he traced the call to Belmont and found that the fender and headlight of his car had recently been repaired.

Belmont made no statement.

COLD TONIGHT TO CHECK RAINS, PREVENT FLOOD HERE

SECOND GALE TEARS OVER DISTRICT

Ice Gorge Sunk by Weight Of Mud, Lessening Peril At 20-Foot River Stage

Colder weather will bring an end to the devastating rains which have swept this district for the last two days, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman announced today.

The mercury will begin falling late today from the unseasonably high average of the last week, Brotzman declared. A low temperature of between 35 and 40 is predicted for tonight.

ICE GORGE SINKS

The stage of the local rivers at the Point was 20.5 feet and stationary this morning, with prospect of a slight fall today. Today's rain may bring a slight secondary rise, Brotzman said, but not sufficient to cause a flood stage of 25 feet.

The huge ice gorge in the Allegheny River above Kittanning, broken up by yesterday's rise, became clogged with mud and sand and sank before reaching Pittsburgh, Brotzman explained.

WIND CAUSES DAMAGE

The heavy wind which accompanied the rain of last night, caused more damage throughout the county. The storm of Monday evening caused damage that is estimated at several hundred thousand dollars, claimed the life of a young man and seriously injured a woman.

During the storm last night lives of several persons were endangered when wind felled a tree at Cornell avenue, near Center avenue, West View. The falling tree struck electric wires, police reported.

LIFE FEARED LOST

Workmen today were dredging Brown Hollow, Turtle Creek, to turn flood water which had cut a new channel and overflowed streets, back into a new storm sewer.

Library road at Overbrook boulevard was blocked for three hours this morning when a large tree was blown across the highway. Wires were broken and the district was without electric current or telephone service until the repairs were made.

DEER CREEK SWOLLEN

Springdale police reported early today that Deer Creek was ready to overrun its banks at the entrance into the Allegheny River. The police said the water was level with the small bridge which crosses the creek at the junction.

Natrona also suffered from the storm last night. Dirt washed down from the hillsides made North Canal street impassable for several blocks. Cellars were flooded, and other property damage was reported.

Throughout the North Boroughs heavy winds were reported. Trees and wires were blown down in Turtle Creek the second storm caused additional delays to traffic.

BRIDGES WASHED AWAY

Towns along the Butler plank road and Perry highway reported heavy damage. Several small bridges in Butler County were reported washed away.

Store owners and residents of Broadway, Pitcairn, were without sufficient water supply today, following the breaking of a water main when Dirty Camp Run overflowed Monday night. Merchants and private families obtained their water from street water plugs, police said. It will be impossible to make repairs for several days, owing to the high water, it was said.

AUTO-TROLLEY CRASH KILLS 3

Three men were killed when their automobile crashed head-on into an Etna trolley car in East Ohio street, near Walker's Bridge, early today.

The dead are Howard M. Oyler, 25, who roomed at 339 South Millvale avenue; Edgar R. Graham, 21, of 6208 Dundee street, East End, and William Weigands, 32, of Resaca place. Oyler and Graham were taken to the Allegheny General Hospital and Weigands to St. Margaret's Hospital, where they were pronounced dead. Each suffered a fractured skull.

The street car, operated by William Krejdl, was eastbound in Ohio street when, according to police, the automobile driven by Weigands, crashed into it. Weigands, police said, turned into the car tracks in an attempt to pass another machine.

The automobile was demolished and the front of the street car damaged. Motorman Krejdl, who had just started work last night after a two months absence due to sickness, was cut and bruised. He was treated at the Allegheny General Hospital.

BORDER LIQUOR BAN PLEDGED

MEXICALI, Lower California, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Gov. Jose Maria Tapia of the northern district of Lower California plans to co-operate with the federal enforcement machinery of the United States, he announced following a conference with United States and Mexican newspapermen here yesterday.

"Every shipment of liquor into the northern district and all liquors manufactured here will be checked by this government," Gov. Tapia said, "and this territory will prevent whenever possible any transportation of liquor into the United States. Furthermore, no seaport in this district will be permitted to land any liquor that is destined for the United States."

The Governor also assured cooperation with the United States government in other international border problems.

Threats Sent to Senators Raise Cold Chills

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Laughter and a little uneasiness make up the Senate's response to a series of threatening letters recently received by several of its members.

Most of the senators are inclined to regard the missives as the work of some harmless crank and scoff at the possibility of danger. One member, however, grew apprehensive at a letter threatening to toss bombs into the Senate chamber and suggested that several buckets of water be kept at hand for this emergency.

Vice President Curtis, Republican Leader Watson and Senator Copeland are among those who have received letters. Copeland's warned him to stay away from the Senate for a couple of weeks. Senator Watson laughed and tossed his letter into a wastebasket.

However, most of the epistles have been turned over to the Department of Justice for investigation, and there is some evidence at the Capitol of the activities of its agents.

TARDIEU ASKED AGAIN TO FORM CABINET

Poincare Refuses Premier's Post; New Government Will Be Compromise One

PARIS, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—With the Chautemps cabinet down in ruins, President Doumergue today entrusted the task of forming a new cabinet to Andre Tardieu, who will seek to form a wide union cabinet with the aid of Raymond Poincare, veteran French statesman.

The President first called in Tardieu this morning and asked him to form a ministry, but Tardieu refused and suggested former Premier Poincare, offering to take a portfolio under him which would include his returning to the London naval conference, marking time pending solution of the French cabinet crisis.

Poincare, however, also refused the post, pleading that his health would be wrecked if he took the reins now before his strength was restored. He is still convalescent from his recent illness. He advised President Doumergue to insist on Tardieu serving as the new premier.

Later Poincare announced, on leaving the Elysee Palace, that Tardieu had been charged with the mission of forming a new cabinet and that he would begin consultations at the Poincare residence this afternoon regarding the membership of the new ministry.

Poincare said he had promised President Doumergue he would help Tardieu form a wide union cabinet. Such a union cabinet appears to offer the only possible solution of the present deadlock inasmuch as the chamber of deputies now has defeated in turn a government with right leanings and one with left leanings.

The general feeling in parliamentary circles this afternoon was that Tardieu would ask Aristide Briand to remain as head of the foreign affairs ministry, that Briand would accept and would return to London for the naval conference.

ADMIRAL JONES SAILS FOR U. S.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—(INS.)—Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones who was forced to leave his position as naval advisor to the American delegation at the London naval conference because of illness, sailed for the United States today aboard the liner Berengaria.

NAVAL PARLEY ENDS RECESS

LONDON, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—The chief delegates to the naval conference today decided to resume work immediately on their negotiations and to continue on the work except where it might be inimical to French interests.

The delegates decided that the recess which was taken on the defeat of the Tardieu government in Paris should cease today.

MEETING IN COMMONS

The meeting of the chief delegates, shrouded with considerable secrecy in advance, was held at the House of Commons late this afternoon. Present were Secretary of State Stimson, Prime Minister MacDonald, Dino Grandi and Reijiro Wakatsuki—all of the big five except Andre Tardieu. Ambassador de Fleuriau of France acted in consulting capacity.

Despite the fact that they were faced with the continued absence of the French the big four decided it best to resume conference activity. It was known in advance that the British at least did not relish a further recess, but wanted to get ahead with business.

That will be done, with the reservation that nothing will be decided which can be inimical to French interests.

At the end of the meeting the delegates left in apparently good spirits. One, when asked if the conference had broken down, replied, smilingly: "No, any such suggestion is rubbish."

CHURCHILL RAPS BRITISH POLICY

LONDON, Feb. 26.—(INS.)—A vigorous denunciation of the disarmament policies of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was launched here today by Winston Churchill, former British chancellor of the exchequer.

"The government seems to be apologizing for the very existence of the British navy," Churchill told the Navy League. "They present the aspect of a shuffling retreat, precipitately conferring concessions."

Churchill said Britain was being "pushed, edged and sidled step by step, into acceptance of a general convenience at the wishes of the other four powers."

DEMOCRATS PICK RUPP; KISTLER

State Committee Selects Two Al Smith Supporters to Head Pennsylvania Slate

HARRISBURG, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Two of the leading forces in the Pennsylvania campaign of 1928 for Alfred E. Smith will head the Democratic ticket for state-wide offices this year.

Unless complications such as hindered the Smith campaign develop, Sedgwick Kistler, of Lock Haven, Democratic national committeeman, and Lawrence H. Rupp, Allentown, former state chairman, are to become candidates for United States Senator and governor, respectively, with the backing of the present party officers and members of the state executive committee.

TENTATIVE SLATE

Both men are included on a tentative slate for all state offices to be filled at this year's elections, having been given the undivided assurance of support of a caucus of influential men and women of the party held here yesterday at the call of John R. Collins, state chairman. The rest of the embryo slate includes:

W. C. Bambrick, Chambersburg, for lieutenant governor.

Mrs. Lucy D. Winston, Mechanicsburg, secretary of internal affairs.

George F. Douglas, Philadelphia, and former Judge Aaron E. Reiber, Butler, for two places on the Superior Court.

At the suggestion of John Hemphill, of Westchester, and others, the assemblage refrained from making a formal indorsement of the candidates.

KISTLER STRONG

The talk of Kistler for senator was unanimous as soon as Chairman Collins informed the conferees he had received a letter from William B. Wilson, who came within 150,000 votes of defeating William S. Vare in the 1926 general election, to the effect that Wilson would not consider running again. For some time before today Kistler had been talked of for the gubernatorial place on the Democratic slate. He informed Collins and other leaders upon arriving here that he would prefer being a candidate for senator.

Rupp, entering the conference as a "dark horse," gained support after Collins informed the meeting that Judge William S. McLean, of the Luzerne County courts, who was favored by the leadership of the party, had written a letter saying he felt it would be unethical for a judge to run for political office.

Pius X. He was a brother of Marquis Alfonso Merry Del Val, Spanish ambassador to Great Britain.

Cardinal Merry Del Val was one of the most distinguished figures in the modern history of the papacy. He was made a cardinal in 1903 at the comparatively early age of 38 and forthwith was created secretary of state to Pope Pius X. Previous to this he had been secretary of the conclave which resulted in the election of Pius X.

The cardinal was of noble Spanish birth. His father was Spanish ambassador to the Court of St. James when the future cardinal was born in London in 1865. He was educated at the Jesuit College of St. Michel, Brussels, and was selected as private tutor to King Alfonso XII. When his father was appointed Spanish ambassador to the Holy See he accompanied him to Rome and entered the Gregorian University to prepare for the priesthood.

ORDAINED AT 24

At 24 he was ordained and retained at the Vatican on special service for Pope Leo XIII. Although one of the youngest prelates in the papal household, he was entrusted with many important missions to foreign lands. He attended Queen Victoria's golden jubilee and was papel envoy at the coronation of King Edward VII.

In 1896 the cardinal proceeded as papal delegate to Canada to report on the adjustment of the claims of the Canadian bishops as to separate Catholic schools in Manitoba.

He succeeded Cardinal Rampolla as pontifical secretary of state in 1903, having been made a cardinal. His term in that office ended with the death of Pope Pius X 11 years later. He then became archpriest of St. Peter's.

REDS DISPERSED IN WALL ST.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Several persons were slightly injured and two were arrested today when police broke up a Communist parade in Wall street. A near-riot occurred when the police bore down on the demonstration, said to have been prompted by the release of a man from Governors Island after he had served part of a sentence for deserting the army.

Police swung fists and clubs when they barred progress of the parade at Wall and Broad streets. Part of the Communists broke through the police line, mingled with the crowds and started the march again at Wall and Broadway, where they were dispersed again.

Two boys were the only ones held out of a dozen that had been placed under arrest. The demonstration, police said, was in celebration of the release of John Porter, of New Bedford, Mass., from Governors Island, where he had served 18 months of a two-year sentence for army desertion. Porter was carried on the shoulders of the men in the parade.

Dog Loses Leg, Measured For Wooden One

Max, the Great Dane, will soon assume his duties as official cat menace at the King Edward Hotel, McKees Rocks.

The cats have had peace since Max lost his rear right leg one day last January, but now he's going to get another. His doctor, S. D. Shoulkin, took him to Feick Brothers Company yesterday afternoon to be measured for an artificial leg. If Max is a good patient and listens to his nurse his wound might heal properly enough for the leg to be attached.

Exactly how the Dane lost his leg is a matter of guesswork among his friends in McKees Rocks. Some say they saw a truck run him down; while others claim he caught his foot in a sewer lid. Regardless of the guesses, Max came limping home last January with a fractured leg. His owner, Edward Cerceo, proprietor of the King Edward Hotel, summoned Dr. Shoulkin, who was forced to amputate Max's leg.

According to Max's doctor, young dogs like young people recover quickly from operations. If this is true Max is betting with the odds, for he's only one year old. A husky pup, too.

CANCER CLINIC WELCOMED BY SEARCHERS

Drs. Coffey and Humber Encouraged by Proposal To Provide for Patients

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL.
Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—Commendation for the board of supervisors and for Dr. W. G. Hassler, the city's health officer, has been expressed by Drs. Walter B. Coffey and John D. Humber on their return from Los Angeles.

Drs. Coffey and Humber made this statement:

"If the Mayor of San Francisco and the supervisors feel induced to make an effort to establish facilities for cancer patients for treatment with our extract, then they deserve fullest commendation.

PROPOSES CLINIC

"Dr. Hassler has taken the initiative in this matter. Our appreciation goes out to him. It was after he had visited our clinic and gathered enough evidence of the effectiveness of our experimental results that he felt impelled to urge the city authorities to start a clinic where treatments can be given by us with the collaboration of the doctors of the University of California and Stanford University Medical Colleges.

"At this moment we have only one regret. It is that the language of the resolution that was passed by the supervisors initiating the establishment of the clinic is apt to mislead people as regards our present claims.

DENY "CURE"

"It would appear from the construction of the resolution as if we had announced the discovery of a cure for cancer. That is, emphatically, not the case.

"As we have repeatedly affirmed through the press we are still experimenting. All we claim is that our extract is potent and seems to be active in some types of malignancies that we have so far treated.

"How long would it take to determine whether the potent extract is an actual cure for malignancies the doctors were asked.

"Two or three years of wide experimental treatments," they replied.

Concerning their trip to Washington, D. C., the doctors said:

"We have accepted Senator Johnston's kind invitation. As soon as we have time to go East, we shall request that the Senate committee make an appointment for our appearance."

Wilkins Favors Subs for Antarctic

(In this instalment, Sir Hubert Wilkins carries on his narrative from the point during his flight with the Los Angeles from the S. S. William Scoresby, when what he and his companions believed land was found to be merely a giant iceberg. He believes the submarine will play an important part in future Antarctic exploration.)

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Hearst-Wilkins Antarctic Expedition.
Universal Service Special Cable.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Feb. 26.—It was a great disappointment when we discovered what must be land to be merely bergs casting the reflected glow of those dark inland waters. But our plane was still holding up, and kept onward, indomitably.

Beneath the Los Angeles, we could glimpse the broken ice floe. We could see no limit to it. Straight ahead of us a great wall of snow clouds barred the way.

The wall was too wide to fly around, too high to fly over—so we pushed into it. It soon proved too thick to fly through with safety, and we were finally forced downward toward the ice.

This was dangerous, since at any time we might meet with high bergs or barriers. Since we could see only a few yards ahead of us it was impossible for Pilot Al Cheesman to keep a straight course. The compasses swung 30 to 40 degrees to either side, and it took all my time trying to keep track of the compass movements.

Fly in Circles

Under such conditions we would soon find ourselves flying around in circles, unable to find our way out of the storm or locate the ship. A few hasty glances through the cabin floor windows assured me that we were still over the floe ice and that it was not possible to go far with safety.

Nevertheless, we kept our course as nearly due south as possible for fully 10 minutes. By that time we believed that we were beyond latitude 73, longitude 101. We were over an area where land had been previously thought to be. Our range of vision was very limited, but not even an indication of a barrier or land was seen.

Reluctantly we turned back, seeking our way out of the clouds and storm was not an easy job as a sort of white darkness closed us in completely. After 20 minutes of dangerous and difficult flying we emerged into clearer atmosphere and set our course for the Scoresby.

Favors Submarines

Had the weather been clear our vision could have ranged 100 miles in each direction. As it was, we had to fight for every inch of distance seen and for every small item of geographical information.

Things come not too easily to be forced to remain at Deception Island for six weeks or more. We were running short of oil and fuel so we decided to hurry back.

Weather Hostile

Our enemy, the weather, was again actively engaged against us. High winds and seas swept the Scoresby from stem to stern, and it seemed as though the plane lashed to the deck, would lose its wings beneath the waves.

It was impossible to go more than half speed ahead against the heavy seas, and, since our time limit for catching the transport was quickly passing and most of the men aboard the Scoresby particularly Cramer, Porter and Cheesman, were suffering from the effects of the rough sea, our progress became a race with time. Our luck, which so far had brought us through, but only after strenuous toil, still held out and we arrived at Deception Island at the moment that the transport was leaving.

Through the kindness of Rugge Jar, of the Hektor Whaling Company, and the generosity of Capt. Svenson and the owners of the Henrik Ibsen, the ship hove to and waited to collect us. In less than two hours after completing our heartbreaking, hazardous and uncomfortable three weeks we were, with our two planes, spare equipment and supplies, safe aboard. Nothing was lost or left behind. We were once more on our way to face the trials of civilization.

Work Is Over

No sooner had we landed on the water than the breaking waves froze to the pontoons and the ice began to pile up on them rapidly. We hauled the plane aboard and waited for better conditions, but the wind increased and the seas rose in great swells, ridging the pack ice in swaths 20 feet high. For safety we had to leave the ice and heave to in the storm for nearly two days.

We had actually completed the main object of our investigations in Antarctica, so, while waiting for the weather to improve, we edged our way along the ice toward Deception Island. Three times, when the wind died down and the weather cleared up slightly, we brought up beside the pack, doing scientific oceanographical work, but never once did the seas calm sufficiently enough for a takeoff.

Our wireless had, apparently, failed to reach Deception Island. For many hours, day and night, I worked with the operator on both short and long wave with no reply.

In order to make the best of our opportunity we carried out a long series of scientific biological work on our homeward journey, penetrating in some longitudes farther South than any vessel had ever been before. At some points we found deeper soundings South of the bank which seems to run parallel with Chatrot Land. This bears out our observations that Stefansson Strait continues Westward from where we crossed it last year.

At last came a wireless message that a transport steamer would leave Deception Island in two days time. If we missed that we might

Praises Whalers

I cannot speak too highly of the great assistance rendered us by Manager Nielson and the directors of the Hektor Whaling Company and the captain and crew of the William Scoresby.

Both Parker Cramer, chief pilot of the expedition, and Al Cheesman had proved their mettle in the Antarctica as they had previously proved it elsewhere. Cramer often fulfilling the harder and more responsible job of staying behind in order to rescue us if necessary.

Orval Porter on each expedition with me has been the backbone of the party, keeping, as he does, our whirlwind engines in such fine condition that in three seasons of work we have not had one forced landing.

Our trip to Montevideo was restful and pleasant and everyone is anxiously looking forward to reaching New York again. We should arrive before the end of March.

What Should She Do?

THAT unforgettable day when Tommy had proposed beside the brook, he caught her in his arms, pressed his lips to hers and said—"Helen, we're going to be married, can you believe it?"

And when he had left to take that new position in Wisconsin, he had made her promise that she would join him in a few weeks . . .

Then came his letters. One every day. Then one a week. And finally . . .

"Dear Helen—I have realized since I went that it wasn't the real thing . . ."

What should she do? Flee from those who might question her? Veil her heartache in the caresses of other men?

THE AUTHOR TALKS ABOUT HER HEROINE

I had a good time doing this novel, for it is a study of a type which has always interested me; the men and women who laugh so courageously over life that people don't give them credit for anything but laughter.

I never felt exactly as if I had created Helen Heather. I felt as if she was there, and all I had to do was tell about her.

You'll thank us for the introduction. For we have figuratively bent over backward to make them the finest fifty-dollar garments you have ever worn!

Every "Horne Fifty" suit and topcoat is hand-tailored from top to bottom—hand-cut, hand-fashioned and sewn throughout by hand—a fact of inestimable importance when interpreted in the fit, comfort and shape-keeping qualities of your clothes.

May we show you the new "Fifties" for spring — and explain their superiorities, point for point. The fabrics are beautiful new woolens in the latest spring shades, including mist blue, blue-grays and the tobacco browns. We have your size and just the model you like.

SUITS

Are Now All Things To All Women << <<

So Universally Becoming That EVERY Woman Is "The Suit Type"

If you have ever thought that you were not suited to suits, you only need to look at the clever and versatile new styles to realize that there is no such thing any more as a "Suit Type." For suits have come back, utterly changed, you know. They are feminine and individual as never before . . . positively glorified out of all semblance to the "tailor-made" of other days. But see for yourself. You'll find every phase of the suit mode here . . . literally hundreds of suits . . . ready for the most important season in many years.

Of Directoire style origin, this distinguished formal suit of fine navy twill, with black galvac fur forming a narrow shawl collar that terminates in a bow. The blouse is of eggshell crepe. $150.

Strictly tailored with the thoroughbred air of an O'Rossen model, this suit of black and white Sharkskin, with white silk crepe blouse. Note the "nipped" waist and up-in-front line. $59.

Sketched are five versions of our many, many new Three-piece Suits for Spring

Sizes 12 to 20—34 to 44

A stunning Scotch tweed with nubs of gold, interwoven with beige and brown, appears in this perfectly tailored suit . . . the beige blouse with bows of gold. 39.75.

A picturesque style and a youthful, feminine one . . . this cape suit of soft fairyleen covert in navy blue, with white silk crepe blouse, accented with navy. $95. (Right).

CHARITY AND KIN AIDED IN WILL

BALTIMORE, Feb. 26 (AP).—The Hospital for the Women of Maryland and the Young Men's Christian Association were left $15,000 by Frank A. Wells, whose will, disposing of an estate of $900,000, was probated here. Other phans' Court. The Y. W. C. A. Women's Christian Association and the Baltimore Methodist Missionary Society of Friends were each given $2,500.

Mrs. Wells was left the family home in Baltimore and a farm in Ogunquit, Me., as well as the interest from a $500,000 trust fund with the power to dispose of it by will.

After making several bequests to employes and relatives, the residue of the estate was left in trust, the income to be distributed among Mrs. Wells' relatives. The testator will then divide it among Wells' two brothers.

JUST RULE AIM OF ORTIZ RUBIO

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 26 (AP).—In a brief speech over the radio last night, President Pascual Ortiz Rubio promised his continuance in office and that government and party would be kept separate for the better good of Mexico. It was his first public utterance since he was wounded in an assassination attempt on inauguration day, February 5.

The President's only mention of the shooting was that he had completely recovered from the effects of his wound and that all departments of the government had demonstrated their loyalty and discipline by continuing to function normally after the shooting. He especially praised the army in all its ranks stressing its loyalty. He thanked those who had sent him messages of sympathy.

KIN BARRED AT SEVIER INQUIRY

HONOLULU, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Sheriff Patrick Gleason announced here that Ralph Shainwald would not be permitted to attend the autopsy over the body of his sister, Mrs. Marion Sevier, formerly of Irvington, N. Y., but would be allowed to have physicians representing him present.

Gleason, ex-officio coroner, said that besides Dr. Robert Faus, police surgeon, who will perform the autopsy, those present would include Faus' interne, E. O. Heinrich, criminologist of Berkeley, Cal., who is a guest of Faus, and the physicians representing Shainwald and Col. Granville Sevier, husband of the woman.

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Feb. 26.—With West Virginia state troopers on guard, the Glendale and the Alexander mine of the J. A. Paisley interests, of Cleveland, are working at approximately 100 per cent, according to E. C. Mobley, general manager.

Strikers attempted to rush a bunch of nonunion workers who arrived on a Baltimore and Ohio train, but were stopped by the troopers.

"Let's take them away from the bulls!" shouted one of the strikers as several hundred members of the National Miners' Union rushed them.

Sergt. A. M. Long ordered the machine guns drawn up and replied: "Just go ahead and try to take them from us." The strikers looked into the barrels of the machine guns and changed their minds.

Lil Andrews, of Cleveland, stormy petrel in the Eastern Ohio strike and known as the new "Mother Jones" in the radical strikers' group, is on the scene and assisting the direction of the strike. IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

Drink Plenty Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

U. S. BANK FINED $3,000,000

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Brazilian Inspector General of Banks, Senhor Ramalho Ortigao, has ordered a fine of nearly $3,000,000 imposed upon the National City Bank, American financial institution, for alleged fraudulent exchange transactions in its Sao Paulo branch during several months. The fine is said to be 50 per cent of the total of those transactions.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (AP)—The National City Bank of New York, when informed of the action of the Brazilian Inspector General of Banks in levying a fine on it, issued the following statement:

"Regarding the fine said to be levied against the branch of the National City Bank of New York at Sao Paulo, Brazil, by the Brazilian Inspector General of Banks, for exchange operations not in accordance with government regulations, officials of the bank have stated that the charges had been made and fully denied some time ago. The charges that also been the subject of some excited comments in the Brazilian press during the political campaign now in progress.

"The bank confidently expects that its case in the Brazilian courts and review of the matter will be accorded it by the Brazilian government, with which the bank's relations have always been exceptional."

STORMS BLOCK OVERSEA RADIO

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (AP)—Broadcasting stations primed to tune in Europe's radio chats have learned with fury limited their dials in the last week.

Magnetic disturbances over the Atlantic robbed short wave stations of their strength so that when they arrived on this side they were too weak to be rebroadcast. In fact, engineers explained the disturbances complicate all efforts more difficult to circumvent than static.

Failure of the short wave signals to push through these storm barriers, whose presence cannot be determined days far in advance, prevented the National Broadcasting Company from carrying out several proposed pickups from abroad. C. W. Horn, general engineer, said. After shattering the ocean the short wave signals are cut into the chain for rebroadcast.

SHUNS COUNSEL IN PAPER CASE

CLEVELAND, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Common Pleas Judge Frederick P. Walther announced he will neither have counsel nor file any briefs at the Court of Appeals hearing, Monday, in the case of Louis Seltzer, editor, and Carleton K. Matson, chief editorial writer, of the Cleveland Press, who were sentenced to jail several months ago by the judge on a charge of being in contempt of his court.

"I feel that by their own admissions both my personal integrity and the integrity of the Common Pleas Court have been fully vindicated," Judge Walther said.

Seltzer and Matson were found guilty by Judge Walther on the contempt charge because of an editorial which appeared in the Press which criticized the judge for his issuing of an injunction to prevent Sheriff E. J. Hanratty from stopping betting at a racetrack here.

IOWAN SPEAKS AT MONESSEN

MONESSEN Pa Feb 26 Industrial leaders from many Western Pennsylvania communities united with members of the Monessen Chamber of Commerce at the twentieth anniversary banquet of the chamber held last night in the junior high school auditorium. Six hundred persons were present and they were addressed by Congressman J. J. Dickinson of Iowa.

Congressman Dickinson stated that the United States should be cautious lest it become too far involved in disarmament projects to effectually defend itself in case of emergency. Declaring that this country had the world's greatest market he advocated that the United States live within itself and depend upon itself as much as possible.

Anthony L. Brautigam president of the chamber presided. Arthur W. Taylor general superintendent of the Page Steel and Wire Company was toastmaster. Among the guests were officials of the community and county, heads of the large industrial plants of the district and two Congressmen.

Congressman Dickinson was accompanied by Congressman Adam M. Wyant of Westmoreland County. Mayor Carl Woodward was chairman of the reception committee. A large delegation of Pittsburgh businessmen were present.

Temperatures Slide Back Near Normal

CHICAGO Feb. 26 AP. The temperature today slid back to the thirties and flurries were falling. There was some slow snow, some sleet, some rain. There were indications of as much as 30 degrees of difference in the Middle West today.

St. Paul, Minn., saw the red line register 20 degrees above zero during the night and snow succeeded sleet and rain yesterday.

The general forecast for most of the area was rather cold today with snow in many places. The Weather Bureau saw no sign of a let-up.

SHOT GANGSTER PLANS WAR

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—(INS.)—Promising gang reprisals on a grand scale, Frank McErlane, veteran gangster, today was suffering from three bullet wounds he received in a pistol battle when three assailants tried to murder him as he lay on his hospital sick bed.

The wounded gunman was released by police last night. Authorities look forward to a bloody session of gang violence after hearing McErlane mutter his threats between groans of pain.

The gang leader, central figure in many spectacular shootings, was hurried from the German Deaconess Hospital to Bridewell after the gun battle plunged the hospital into a furor early yesterday.

With a broken leg suspended on pulleys, McErlane fought a spectacular duel with his attackers, forcing them to flee after they had shot him three times.

It was said that McErlane was the victim of a liquor gang which sought to collect $10,000 for a truckload of whisky.

Chief of Detectives John Stege transferred Sergt. John McArdle and his squad for failing to recognize the wounded gunman, who had entered the hospital under an alias.

Farmer Predicts Peach Crop Lost

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 26.—W. S. McGinnis, of North Beaver Township, predicts that the peach crop in Lawrence County would be a total failure. The buds were dried up.

He believes the buds were killed in the freezing storm of last Thanksgiving.

4 MEN KILLED IN MINE BLAST

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Four men were killed and three injured late yesterday in an explosion at the Lytle mine of the Lytle Coal Company, about six miles from here. Seven members of the first rescue squad to enter the mine were overcome by afterdamp, but other volunteers brought them out.

A pocket of gas became ignited in a manner yet undetermined and the explosion tore through a section of the west dip on the sixth level, about a mile from the mouth of the mine.

FLIER SAILING FOR SEA FLIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—(INS.)—Bound for England and his forthcoming attempt at a nonstop flight from London to New York, Maj. Charles E. Kingsford-Smith will sail from Australia for San Francisco on March 15, it was announced today.

This word was received here by R. H. Kingsford-Smith, brother of the intrepid flyer who startled the world by his trans-Pacific flight in the Southern Cross from California to Australia nearly two years ago.

In his attempt to fly from London to New York, Maj. Kingsford-Smith will again use the big monoplane Southern Cross, his brother said. The ship is being completely overhauled for the flight.

Eskimos Get 'Kick' Riding in Plane

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—High flying Eskimos are described in the annual report of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Punch Dickins, aviator, gave them rides at Aklavik for $10 each and customers were still in sight when his gas gave out.

PRESBYTERIANS TO OPEN DRIVE

Pittsburgh Presbyterians will be asked on Sunday, March 9, to contribute $2,700,000 towards a fund of $65,000,000 that is being raised to meet the expenses of the denomination in the United States during the year beginning April 1.

A house-to-house canvass will be made that afternoon by hundreds of teams of two men each, who will report at the evening services. The Rev. Ralph W. Lloyd, pastor of the Edgewood Presbyterian Church, is chairman of the canvass, and there are 10 district chairmen.

Pittsburgh Presbytery, largest in the United States, has 135 churches and 69,537 communicant members.

Parents, Children Burned By Blast

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 26.—Mrs. Frank Guanneri, 47, of Plain Grove Township; her husband, a son, Regget, and little daughter were burned when their home was destroyed by a fire.

It is said that the woman poured the kerosene into a stove, which ignited. Mrs. Guanneri may die.

2 'BOMB TRUST' MEN GUILTY

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—(INS.)—Michael Casselli and Steve Ficke, alleged members of Chicago's notorious "tomb trust," today face prison terms of from five to 20 years.

After deliberating six hours a jury last night convicted the pair and decided to give them the maximum penalty for their alleged part in manufacturing and selling bombs. Gus Fiocca, a third defendant, was acquitted.

The state produced evidence to show the defendants supplied bombs for racketeers who in turn visited their displeasure upon small businessmen by bombing their stores.

RUM SUSPECT FOUND SLAIN

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—The shooting of Charles R. Hacking, 32, of Cranston, R. I., described by police as a bootlegger, was being investigated today.

With a single bullet wound in the chest and head badly bruised, the body was found at a roadside near the state line by motorists last night. He had been dead less than an hour.

He was identified by an operator's license card in his pocket. Other papers revealed a residence at Carver, Mass. Medical Examiner Jesse W. Battershall said he believed the man had been slain.

HOLLYWOOD AND BROADWAY IN REVIEW AND LOCAL AMUSEMENT NOTES

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.

WHAT TWO OF THEM

THE night life section will be distinguished by another new place shortly. It's to be located on Fifty-fourth street and will be named "The Club Abbey." O'Keefe's entertainers will be one of the attractions, with such reliables as Arcadia Hall, Aida Ward, Buck and Bubbles, Ubie Blake's Orchestra and a hi-yaller who has been a headliner. This should be a special attraction to Count Morgan's wife for the hi-yaller who has been SEEN with his bands calls here. Texas Guinan.

ON THE GREAT WHOOPEE WAY

Earl Carroll

"He's Earl Carroll," whispered a whisperer, the fellow who believed that his friends were as white as the Broadway lights—which happen to be yellow."

REVISED

IN FEWER WORDS

It is one headline writer's hope that the government agents some day close up all the Broadway sin-dens so that he can write: "Night Club Joint Barleycorned!"

LOVE FINDS A WAY

THE journals recently told of the tiff between Glenn Hunter and June Walker, of Mr. Dillingham's "Waterloo Bridge" play and how Miss Walker decided to quit after her quarrel with her co-star. Things were rattled, however, and Miss Walker agreed to continue. Now it appears Mr. Hunter won't go on for a matter of three weeks, and the producer, fed up with his misbehaving hams, has wired instructions from Palm Beach to "close the darn thing" so it closes this week.

But Glenn Hunter's case isn't temperament. His heart one Babe Egan has just come back to town—and you know how that is!

AN OLD SPANISH CUSTOM

ARGENTINITA, Spain's gift to [illegible] Ziegfeld's International Revue, has finally given her permission to the producer to use her name in the advertising columns. In fact, Argentinita has a big display ad all by herself in the papers and after a series of temperamentals, explains she showed up for rehearsals and then made Mr. Leslie Stone-Gertrude Lawrence-Harry Kelly-Ina Claire-Florence Moore-Jack Pearl and all the other stars in the same show out of theater the other day so that no one but Lenore could see her rehearse Le dahling Isadora.

And to show her superiority the dear little imperialistic demanded two dressing rooms. Her own, incidentally, is to be interior-decorated, and the other, dressing room is to serve as a reception room for her friends and callers. These demands, of course, must be a little trying considering the show has the largest cast of stars and other entertainers in town.

APPROPRIATE

ON Broadway they no longer crush you with "Oh don't be so old-fashioned." It's "Oh don't be a high-brow!"

REASON ENOUGH

They were chinning about one of those ideally married pairs when another interrupted to report that the wife was having the marriage Reno-vated.

But I cannot understand her reason," declared a listener, "there isn't a better fellow going."

That's just it," was the reply, "he went too far and forgot to take her along with him.

OOP

BOOTH TARKINGTON'S "The Plutocrat" was prepared for the stage the other night and one of the potshots at New York went big with the listeners. It was: "New York, bah. Of all unrepresentative places! It's half European and half mining town."

A gent applauded boisterously and audibly remarked: "By golly, that certainly describes it good."

In the foyer someone asked him where he came from. "From the same place that raised Odd McIntyre," he proudly answered. "Gallipolis, Ohio."

MERCILESS TRUTH

Framed motto on a chorus girl's bedroom wall: "The first 10 commandments are the hardest."

In Revival

Eleanor Painter is starred in the revival of Victor Herbert's comic opera, "The Fortune Teller," which comes to the Alvin next week.

HERBERT COMIC OPERA COMING TO ALVIN NEXT WEEK

The seat sale begins tomorrow for Eleanor Painter in "The Fortune Teller" in the Alvin, commencing Tuesday evening, March 4. This comic opera was composed in Pittsburgh during the first year of Victor Herbert's association as conductor, with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra.

"Salt Water" is the comedy drama to be presented by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week. Written by Dan Jarreet and presented by John Golden at the John Golden Theater, New York, with Frank Craven in the star role, the play is still enjoying a prosperous run in Gotham. Harland Tucker will enact the Frank Craven role in the local presentation.

Miss [illegible], diminutive comedienne, is playing in the Nixon this week in Emmerich Kalman's Hungarian operetta "Sari." "Sari" is considered one of the masterpieces of Hungarian music, it being favorably compared to the "Merry Widow." There will be a matinee today.

Tully and Gilbert Seen As 'Klondike' in Fight Film

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 26.

THIS bureau hears that James Cruze made a bid for Jack Dempsey's services in "The Big Fight." Jack starred in this play on New York's White Way. But the Big Boy is said to have asked for a lil' too thick slice of dough. This bureau—following its custom to be always constructive (hum . . .)—suggests that Cruze give the Dempsey role to Jim Tully.

Tully has established himself as a two-fister film stars should reckon with. And to make matters simpler for Jimmy, he (Tully) has agreed to grease-paint in Cruze's celluloid version of "Circus Parade." Tully and Jack Gilbert co-starring in "The Big Fight" would be a box office Klondike!

John Gilbert

SPEAKING of Gilbert, the town is ditherty over what may or may not be a manufactured gossip tid-bit. To-wit: That the party Jack's friends gave and whereat Gilbert and Tully shook hands developed into a mental anti-climax. For while the two main-bouters relaxed knuckles and called quits to the past, the friends—'tis said—have chosen to assume an aggressive attitude toward Tully. Perhaps the aged instinct. Where there's union there's—er—D'Artagnan power.

LON CHANEY TO TALK

Sh-h-h, don't tell where you got it, but, I hear — hear, mind you, and plenty willing to gamble, I'm right—that Lon Chaney's first talking picture will be "The Unholy Three." As a silent Chaney film, it was a double spiked wow. As a talkie, it should be ditto. And his first ——!

WHY is Universal so interested in the musical version of Resurrection that Tiffany plans to make? Yep. And what's this the departmental ear picks up about Universal visualizing their boy John Boles singing the role Rod La Rocque played opposite Dolores Del Rio in Edwin Carewe's celluloid translation of Tolstoi's story? Negative ear pickups indicate, however, that Tiffany isn't blinking an eyelash over the matter. Something up. I'll keep track of it—if I remember.

Rod La Rocque

OUTDOOR DEPARTMENT

SEEMS the Fox Rumpus have organized what they call the outdoor romance department. The story head of this production innovation interviewed a prospective writer.

"You could give us what we wanted," he admitted to the writer, "but you're too old."

The writer remarked mildly that he was only 32.

"Too old," murmured the head. "We have orders on the lot to engage no writer older than 38 and no writer for this department older than 30."

Whereupon the dazzled cribester stumbled to a telephone directory and featured his hungry eyes on a list of the town's best face lifters.

DESERVES A RAISE

HE probably won't get a salary raise, but he deserves it. Out on the Pathe lot, Mary Hutchinson had been rehearsing dance whoosits for a two-reeler, y'clept "Pick 'Em Young." She rehearsed three days. Strenuously. On the fourth day, camera. Also on the fourth day, Miss Hutchinson developed a "charlie horse." A charlie horse is a leg twister that gives its owner a pain. In this inst., the pain was going to the keeper of the exchequer. No Miss Hutchinson, no work, no work, $5,000 red ink item on the production chart. First aid remedies failed to skeedaddle the charlie horse. An ingenuous soul on the set stepped to the fore. Why not concentrate the rays of a studio sunlight arc on the temperamental leg? Presto, it was done. Exit the charlie horse on the melt. And $5,000 was saved the company. But, I bet five to one, sniffed she cynically, that the guy who made the suggestion didn't even get a raise in salary.

'LOYALTIES' WELL DONE AS 'Y' PLAYHOUSE SECOND BILL

By GEORGE SEIBEL

From the fantastic farce of Andreyev, with its Roman togas and armor, to the sober realism of Galsworthy, in his accurate portrayal of modern manners and passions, was the leap taken last night at the Playhouse of the Y. M. & W. H. A. in Bellefield avenue. "Loyalties" was the drama chosen for this second offering of the season, and it was a very creditable production when the great difficulties are taken into consideration.

Romans may be recruited from anywhere and need not fear any invidious comparisons. But the English aristocracy in its simon-pure state, with the undiluted Mayfair accent, is not easy to counterfeit. The Players at the Y may be congratulated upon having remained human when they might easily have become brummagen.

SOME EXCELLENT WORK

Some of them did really excellent work. Milton Brauman as Jacob Twisden and Mary Rowland Clark as Margaret Orme carried off the chief honors, he by a very dignified and sincere performance and she by a breezy but not overdone assumption of mannishness. But Peter Previte by one short scene of genuine emotion as Ricardos and Phillip Greenwood by a consistent and well-balanced portrayal of de Levis, also added to the powerful impression this well-constructed play of Galsworthy's must always register.

Other people in the cast acquitted themselves with honor, among them Chester B. Story, Marianne Dempsey, Alexander Kann, Harold Weinberger, T. Morrison Miller, Hortense Baer, Richard Pishel and Alfred E. Smith.

ALL WENT SMOOTHLY

All went smoothly in spite of the heavy labor entailed by a production that requires five settings for three acts. The stage direction was by Helen R. Stout, who gave it exactly the right tempo, while the scenery had been designed and painted by Frank Stout with all requisite detail carefully observed.

When "Loyalties" was presented in Pittsburgh by a professional company, there were imported actors who knew just which syllables to swallow and which aitches to drop. The courage of the young people who presented the play last night, and are repeating it tonight, deserves no less commendation than their very considerable measure of success.

PARIS AND PITTSBURGH AGREE

on Milady's Spring Fashions

Cabled Reports From Paris Style Shows Coincide With Advance Hints of Local Department Stores

For authentic information regarding newest Spring styles read the Paris fashion news on the Society Page daily in the Sun-Telegraph.

In Pittsburgh, as in Paris, the skirt is to return to a much saner length, according to reports from the Paris openings, and from information given the Sun-Telegraph by the stylists of Pittsburgh's leading Department and Women's Specialty Stores. For afternoon and sports wear the skirt will hover shortly below the knee-line for evening wear, the skirt will be a little above the ankle, and for formal wear, the skirt will touch the floor. Skirts are to be wider and fuller with the even hem line featured. The silhouettes most favored for Spring are the peplum, jacket, blouse, belt and cape style. Suits, according to Paris and authenticated by local stylists, will be very, very good this Spring. A new feature of the suit is the nipped in waistline. The most favored materials for suits will be tweeds, wool crepes and woolens and jerseys. For dresses, printed silks are undoubtedly the leaders. Flowered silks, appropriately for Spring, are much favored, although the smaller prints will be very good, according to store stylists here. Crepes, voiles, fine worsteds and poplins are good for general wear and in the afternoon dresses, chiffons, prints and plain silks are good. Sportswear adds shantung and silk pique to the list of favored materials. For evening wear, Paris decrees chiffons, satins, georgettes and laces. Tulle and taffeta still are good.

SPRING STYLES DECREE COLOR!

Color is variant as usual and leaves much to the discretion of the wearer, although blue seems to be the favored leader. Blue is suitable to all complexions, not only in navy but in the lighter shades. In the darker shades blue is enlivened by combining it with brighter colors. Dusty or muted pastels were shown to good advantage in the Paris openings last week. Local stylists predict a good season for them. Other favored colors are greens in spring shades, reds in the tomato shades, pinks (particularly the muted shades) and the ever-popular black. The coats show a Russian or Napoleonic influence with the slightly flared effect in the skirt and the medium high waistline. The waistline, however, is another feature which may be adjusted to suit the personality of the wearer. Capes and peplums are excellent in coats for Spring. Belts, above all, must not be neglected. Swagger camel's hair coats, generally tailored are excellent.

BUCS GET BATTING DRILL

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Billiard Plan Faulty. • Another Dodger Loss.
Open Tourney Uneven. Play-Offs in Baseball.
Throng at Buc Opener. Fistic Wrong Righted.

PRO CUEISTS FAR SURPASS AMATEURS

UNABLE satisfactorily to arrange tournaments for the world balk-line titles this season, the billiard authorities, hard pressed for a method to spur competition, are reported to favor establishment of the open or professional-amateur style tourney in cuedom. But the plan hardly will succeed. The open tournament, suitable in golf and now proposed for tennis with some promise of success, offers scant hope as a stimulus to billiard interest.

John A. Clinton, Jr.

In golf there are amateurs aplenty to cope with the professionals. Indeed, some of the amateurs are so active and able as to seem more professional than the pros themselves. Tennis, too, with such men as Vincent Richards, Karel Kozeluh, the Czech, Hans Nejuch, the German, Paul Feret and others, could muster a satisfactory, even if not victorious, opposition for the best racquet amateurs, and with frequent competition professional tennis might produce numerous additional capable players.

BRIDGING the gap between professional and amateur skill in billiards however is not so easy. Without recourse to actual figures it can be recalled that John A. Clinton, Jr., of Pittsburgh, averaging around 20 at 18.2 balkline, was a standout among the amateur 18.2 cuelists when he retired as National champion.

But a few years back, playing here against the Japanese, Kinrey Matsuyama, then a fair-to-middling pro averaging about 30, Clinton had virtually no chance. And "Matsy" up to that time had never threatened the first-flight professionals, among whom an average of 50 is commonplace. So it will be seen that there is a wide difference between the best professionals and the best amateurs in the cue sport.

IT TAKES many years of studious practice to make a great balk-line billiard player. New faces among the stars are scarce. The veterans—Schaefer, Hoppe, Cochran, Horemans, Hagenlacher, Conti, Grange, and a few lesser lights continue to carry on year after year.

To pit the best amateurs against any of these would be ridiculous, unless, of course, the play were on a handicap basis. And no real championship in any sport can be decided that way.

Kinrey Matsuyama

WHILE the Pirates are in Paso Robles preparing themselves for the National League's 1930 pennant race, a heap of work will be going on here in connection with another end of the game, work that will not attract so much attention but that is just as important as the conditioning of the players. That is the big matter of getting things ready in the business department for the opening of the home season at Forbes Field on Wednesday, April 23. There are huge batches of mail to be answered, thousands of orders to be filled for single-game, series or season seat reservations, and a hundred and one other things to be cared for that will keep the members of the Pirate office force busy for weeks to come. With Secretary Sam Watters in charge, however, the huge job is in the hands of one of the most capable baseball men in the country, and local fans have the assurance that everything will be in ship shape for the hoisting of the curtain.

ORDERS are already coming in from individuals and parties for the opening game of the season here. They are being received from all parts of the Tri-State territory, one Clarion order being for 26 tickets, and judging from the early demand one of the largest crowds that ever attended an opener here will be on hand at Forbes Field when the Pirates and Reds pry off the lid eight weeks from today.

Secretary Watters announces a new feature in connection with his year's advance sale that is certain to cause an extra rush. Annually the Pirate secretary has been swamped with applications for season boxes, only to find himself unable to fill them. This year, however, he announces that for the first time in a number of seasons he has some boxes in the old grandstand available for sale. These will be sold outright for the season, eight seats to a box, the price not including park admission. Applications will be considered in the order of their receipt and fans are urged to send them in as soon as possible.

GLENN WRIGHT is not the only doubtful Robin. Several operations that he underwent during the winter for sinus trouble and mastoiditis may keep Del Bissonette, Brooklyn first baseman, from being a regular part of the lineup this year.

Del Bissonette

Bissonette, like Wright, reported at the Dodger training camp with the pitchers and catchers, but he has been ordered not to exert himself for at least a week. It is not a certainty that Del will be a regular. If he isn't, Harvey Hendrick or Rube Bressler will be used at his position.

LESTER PATRICK, manager of the New York Rangers and one of hockey's most prominent figures, is the latest to advocate a plan that has been put up to the baseball powers several times in recent years without success. That is, to substitute for the world series between the two pennant winners an annual series of play-offs among the leading clubs of the major loops. Previous suggestions have included all the teams in the two circuits. Patrick proposes the same system followed in hockey, with the clubs that finish first, second and third in each league taking part in the play-offs.

"HOW long has Babe Ruth been a big shot in baseball?" Patrick asks. "Fifteen years? All right? How many times has he appeared in Cincinnati? Ty Cobb was a great player for 20 years? How many times did the fans of Pittsburgh see him? Rogers Hornsby has been recognized for almost 15 years as one of the greatest hitters of all time? How many times have they seen him in Cleveland?

"How many games did Grover Alexander ever pitch in Washington? How many home runs has Hack Wilson made in Detroit? The answer to each of these questions is 'none,' barring Cobb's appearance in world series or exhibition games in Pittsburgh. And these are only a few of baseball's outstanding players that never have been seen by millions of fans in big league cities interested in their exploits.

"SUPPOSE you were the manager of—well, let us say Harry Lauder. Would you say that he could appear in Pittsburgh, Brooklyn and Cincinnati, but not in Washington, Cleveland or Detroit? Silly, eh? But is it any sillier than keeping Ruth out of Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Brooklyn?

"They could easily cut down the schedules from 154 games to 140

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 26.—Bill Kappell of Pittsburgh, teed off here this morning in the second round of match play in the annual Dixie golf championship tournament. He is opposing W. A. Andrews of Miami in the eighth sixteen. Kappell yesterday defeated Dr. F. B. Sanborn, of New York by 4 and 3.

ROSIES TOP HOOSIERS

FT. WAYNE, Ind., Feb. 26.—The Fort Wayne Hoosiers, deadly enemies of the Cleveland Rosenblums, lost a bitter contest to their foemen here last night, 18 to 17, dropping to third place. The Rosies now rest only a few points behind the Centrals of Rochester, who are leading the American League.

LANDIS BARS KANE

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Player John F. Kane of the Little Rock Club of the Southern Association, has been suspended for 90 days by Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, for an assault on an umpire last season while playing in the Cotton States League. The suspension will reduce by 10 days the time imposed by the Cotton States League.

IOWA TO DEFEND TITLE

IOWA CITY, Ia., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—The University of Iowa will return to major competition in Western Conference sports at Minneapolis, March 7-8, when it will defend the indoor track championship, won in a close battle with Illinois here last year.

ALLEGED FOUL THREAT IS CITED

By DAMON RUNYON
Universal Service.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 26.—James J. Johnston, otherwise the old Boy Bandit, who holds the American rights to Phil, the Painter, is shrillinga serious protest against the selection of Louis Magnolia as referee of the Sharkey-Scott bout Thursday night.

Lou Magnolia.

The old Boy Bandit hooked into your operatives right ear and poured therein a volume of chatter, the burden of which was he fears Louie will not do right by his Phil. This was no publicity plaint, either. The old Boy Bandit was speaking from his soul. He knows that nothing he says now is going to bost the gate. His words were as one friend to another.

"I'm going to have a quiet talk with the boxing commissioners," he said, "and explain to them just why I feel Magnolia isn't the proper man to referee this bout. He withholds to himself the privilege of stopping the fight any time he sees fit. I claim that in a bout of this importance the referee should not halt proceedings under any circumstances until one man or the other is knocked out."

THREAT ALLEGED

"I am told that some one asked Magnolia what he would do if Phil claimed foul, and he replied: 'I'll count the so-andso out, and drag him back to his corner and throw him in Johnston's lap.' Now, I say that if Magnolia did make this statement it disqualifies him as a fair and impartial referee."

And James J. Johnston looked appealing at your operative out of his big brown eyes (Mr. Johnston's eyes) as if looking for sympathy.

"Magnolia is inclined to be a grandstander in the ring," he continued. "He seems to think the public pays to see him referee. I am not denying that he is a competent official under ordinary circumstances and thoroughly honest, but his attitude in this matter doesn't strike me as entirely reasonable.

WOULD CHANGE REFEREE

"There are quite a number of other nationally known referees now in Miami, any one of whom would be acceptable to me, and I am certainly going to ask the commission to put one in the center Thursday night," said Mr. Johnston.

"Among others there are Emerson W. Dickerson, of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Leo O'Shea, of California; Frank McCracken, of Philadelphia, and a dozen others. I don't see why the commission should insist on Magnolia under the circumstances, and I'm going to fight against him unless he agrees not to stop the fight except on a foul or knockout."

OPPOSED TO MAGNOLIA

As a matter of fact, the old Boy Bandit never has cared a whole lot for magnolia as a referee of battles in which his gladiators are engaged. He had at least one open spat in the ring with Louie, and I have heard him mildly criticise Magnolia's work on several occasions. I haven't seen the nimble referee to ask him if he has been quoted correctly about saying he would count Phil out and throw him in Johnston's lap if he claimed foul, but the remark hardly sounds like Magnolia.

It is possible, however, that Johnston's last-minute rear may produce a change in the referee. Possible, but scarcely probable.

YESTERDAY'S EXPLANATIONS: CAPT. MANU SWAM 20 MILES ACROSS A SHARK-INFESTED CHANNEL—On February 28, 1911, at 8:30 p. m., Capt. Manu's little ship was rammed and sunk while crossing the Molekai channel, Hawaii. He was thrown into the water, not noticed by the other ship, and, realizing his plight, started to swim to Lania, a distance of more than 20 miles through water infested with sharks. Manu reached Kaena Point on the Island of Lanai shortly before noon the next day. Manu's feat, considering his advanced age of 77 years, is one of the greatest endurance tests and displays of grit and courage ever recorded in the history of the Pacific. "LITTLE JAKE." SANKEY SHOWS WELL IN FIRST INFIELD WORK

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Feb. 26.—The presence of cool weather at the California training camp of the Pirates has failed to put a damper on the activities of the Pittsburgh flag contenders. Jewel Ens and his big advance squad were up and at 'em today, and it was noticeable that more than one pitcher seemed anxious to beat down as a result of the jousts of the past few days.

Ben Sankey

Ens stated this morning that in the event of better baseball weather during the day he would inaugurate the first batting drill of the season. If he does, the infielders and catchers will be the principal recipients, although Ens is likely to let some of his sharp-shooters take a turn at the plate.

TO BE MORE LIBERAL

Donie Bush was not keen for giving the pitchers any batting exercises. Donie held to the idea that most pitchers were necessary evils when they stalk forth toward the batters armed with a hickory stick, although there are many exceptions to the rule and it has been the lack of the Buccos to own more than a fair share of the exceptions.

Well anyhow, Ens will be more liberal toward the pitchers in the matter of swinging at the elusive sphere.

The workout of yesterday was marked by the initial infield session of the season and the veterans of the club were still talking of this spree this morning. Ens went to the plate with a bat and a few new balls after stationing Jim Mosolf at first, John Skuba at second, Charley Engle and Ben Sankey at short and Steve Clarke at third.

The focus of attention and interest was centered on the shortfield locality, owing to the delightful actions of Engle and Sankey. The first-named is a finished Class A performer, he having starred for the Memphis club of the Southern Association. Charley recently underwent an operation for removal of his appendix, but you would not know it unless you had been told. The little fellow swarmed all over the Waxnerian range.

SANKEY GETS CONTEST

Sankey was the cynosure of all eyes for more than one reason. Here we have a lad who has had scant experience, but whose appearance on a big-league diamond for a brief spell last autumn made other Pirates blink. Ben put on a lot of weight during the winter and the lanky boy came to camp looking for all the world like a big league prospect. He is about the size of Travis Jackson and he has an arm that in many ways is a reminder of Glenn Wright. His underhand shots are especially pleasing and he can get a lot of stuff on the rocket when he brings it overhanded to first.

Manager Ens and Scoops Carey gave this pair a lion's share of the attention in the first infield turnover. Both are sure to be in action when the Regular-Yannigan games start. It may be that one of them will get a shot at the shortstop job in the regular lineup in the camp battles. So far

GARDEN BOXING ARENA OPENS TONIGHT

By HARRY KECK.
Sports Editor

Pittsburgh's newest boxing arena, the Duquesne Garden A. C., makes its bow to the public tonight in the upstairs hall of the home of the ice hockey club. With Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, managed by James (Red) Mason, meeting Vincent Hambright, Filipino, of Cincinnati, in the 10-round main bout, the initial card appeals to the fans and indications are that the 1,500 to 1,800 capacity of the place will be tested.

Hambright will be making his second start in Pittsburgh. He was brought here recently to box Tom Maico, of Soho, in the windup of the only show held in the Coliseum, and really won the bout, although the official decision was a draw.

Belmont has not boxed since Christmas afternoon, when he lost to Tiger Joe Randall at Motor Square Garden, and he is anxious to beat Hambright tonight to get back in winning stride and become a local card again. In meeting Hambright, he takes on a dangerous puncher, one who has

Paid $15,000 Last Year, A's Rookie Quits Game

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Bill Breckenridge, a right-handed recruit pitcher with the Philadelphia Athletics last year, has resigned. The former Dartmouth ace, who is now studying law at Oklahoma University, wrote to Connie Mack that he was quitting baseball at the request of his father, a judge in Tulsa, for the bar.

Brackenridge found a year with the champions quite profitable. He was given $5,000 as a bonus for signing a contract, $5,000 for salary and slightly more than $5,000 as his share of world series money. He turned in something like six or eight innings of big league pitching and a few innings of exhibition work for his $15,000.

SECOND PIRATE 'SQUAD' LEAVES

With only one player and a scout climbing aboard the rattler there will be nothing very strongly suggestive of a baseball training squad in the Pirate party leaving here over the Pennsylvania Railroad at 7.25 o'clock tonight, but by the time the Paso Robles practice camp is reached the detachment will have attained the size and importance of the second division or main guard of the Pittsburgh club.

Scout Bill Hinchman and Outfielder Adam Comorosky will be the only members of the Buccaneer outfit entraining here tonight. Comorosky arrived last night from Swoyerville, Pa., and Hinchman came in this morning from Columbus, O.

SCOTT GOOD SHORT END, CORBETT

By JAMES J. CORBETT
World Heavyweight Champion 1892-1897

It is well night impossible to pick intelligently the winner of the Phil Scott-Jack Sharkey 15-round fight at Miami, Fla., tomorrow night. The affair is shrouded with so many ands, ifs and buts that I regard it as too difficult a matter to pierce through the maize and select what looks like the logical winner.

J. J. Corbett

I don't think logic can be applied to this fight, not form either. There are so many unknown or uncertain qualities about each that one man's guess is as good as another's; a flip of a coin can make the choice just as well as the experts can.

The shrewd betting man undoubtedly will take the short end in the betting, and the short end is Scott. At the moment of writing, the offer is 3 against your 1 that Sharkey will win.

ODDS UNJUSTIFIED

I do not see anything in Sharkey's record, nor in Scott's, that justifies making the United States champion such an overwhelming favorite.

Sharkey is a powerful hitter—but only upon occasions. Give him openings, let him drive through, and he perhaps can flatten what he hits. But Scott is too clever, too fast and too brainy to stand around and invite Sharkey to test out his punches.

Scott has a style destined to trouble Sharkey. The American never could accomplish much with the "stay-aways." In fact, his worst fights have been with men who wouldn't leap in and slug. When Sharkey must go out and stalk his man as Scott undoubtedly will force him to do, Sharkey loses his effectiveness.

Of course if Scott proceeds to slug it out with Sharkey, well, that bodes ill for Phil, because I think Sharkey can hit harder and is so constituted that he can take more punishment. But if desperation, not a foolish bravery, causes Scott to stand toe-to-toe

Facts and Fancies About Our New Bucs

This is the second of a series of thumbnail sketches of the new Pirate players sent from the Paso Robles, Cal., training camp by Charles J. Doyle, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph staff correspondent. Others will follow in rapid order.

NO. 2—BERNARD WALTER, PITCHER

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 26.—Bernard Walter, one of the youngest and greenest of the Pirate rookies, wants to be a lawyer some day, but this ambitious pitcher, who left the University of Tennessee to become a big leaguer, appears to have a bad case of baseball fever and no desire to check it.

When Bernard talks to you you think of the songs and lore of sunny Tennessee, for there is music in his voice, a sparkling dance in his eyes and a touch of the picturesque in his language.

"Ah know this trip is a big thing for me, and Ah suah am gonna take advantage of it," said the bubbling lad from Dixie, who has set to pitch professional ball.

Bernard came up to Pittsburgh for a few weeks last summer at the behest of the Pirate management to work out with the Buccos. He had been a student at the university mentioned. The young man put in two years at college and some day he wants to further his education and then study for a law degree. The youngster's people are so fixed that he could continue in school, but he loves baseball. A strapping lad, he would like to live as a major leaguer for a number of years, and now he is on the biggest venture of his life.

Bernard Walter

Bernard may become homesick, but he will fight off the feeling with the idea of making a bid for baseball fame.

Ervin Brame is responsible for the collegian's presence with the Pirates. Erv heard so much good about his college performances that he arranged the trip to Pittsburgh. The Tennessee recruit lives within 30 miles of Brame's Kentucky home.—CHARLES J. DOYLE.

PETE LATZO, former welterweight fistic champion and now operating in the light heavyweight ranks, isn't going to profit by the undeserved decision that he received over Larry Johnson, capable Negro battler of Chicago, in their New York bout last week. Johnson did practically all of the leading and forcing during the 10 rounds, but for his efforts the $30,000 crowd would have seen little or no action. Latzo did not show much except gameness and defensive tactics, yet to the amazement of all fair-minded ringsiders the referee and one judge handed Pete a decision that clearly belonged to Johnson. Tom McArdle, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, now makes a commendable attempt to right matters. He has ignored the verdict and selected Johnson, instead of Latzo, to meet Maxie Rosenbloom in a special light heavyweight card to be staged next month. In this he is acting with the approval of at least two members of the New York Boxing Commission. It is a pleasing and praiseworthy move in the cause of fairness and sportsmanship.

SOUTH HILLS CAPTURES SECTION 2 CROWN

Mrs. Riley, Local Star, Qualifies at Ormond Beach

★ SUN-TELEGRAPH ★ SPORTS ★

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1930 TWENTY-THREE

TUNNELITES NOSE OUT PERRY, 19-17

South Hills bounded into the championship of Section II of the City League for the second year in a row defeating Perry yesterday afternoon 19 to 17 in a play-off battle on the Pitt Stadium floor. The rival five finished the regular season deadlocked with 10 wins and two defeats each.

South Hills had to engage in a playoff series a year ago to get into the championship series. The Hilltoppers will now face Fifth Avenue Section I champs and defending league titlists in a three game series (if necessary) which is slated to open with a game Friday afternoon on the Stadium court.

PERRY GAINS EARLY LEAD

Perry took an early lead over South Hills yesterday. Gahring and Kornich banging in field goals before three minutes of the first period had been played and by showing some fair defensive play maintained the advantage throughout the first half. When the first two periods were over the North Siders led by 9 to 7.

But South Hills came into its own after the intermission and Gaffer Regan Rigg and Kress took turns in slipping under the hoop for goals meanwhile keeping Perry from registering a single field goal. Had it not been for excellent work at the foul line by Gahring who dropped five free throws out of as many tries Perry would have been beaten by a greater margin than the two points that separated the teams when the game ended.

Gahring led in the scoring with a field goal and five fouls for a seven point total. Gaffer tallied six points for South Hills. A crowd of about 2,000 intensely loyal scholastic fans witnessed the game.

JUNIORS NEAR FINAL

The City Junior League series went ahead another step yesterday when Herron Hill won its sixteenth game in a row, to beat Glenshone 28 to 23. Herron Hill joins South Junior in the final Friday.

In the W. P. I. A. L. race Scott High of North Braddock knocked off Braddock 22 to 14; Rankin beat East Pittsburgh 28 to 19; M. Keesport topped Clairton 25 to 17; Aspinwall lost to Swissvale 29 to 18; Mt. Lebanon bumped Wilkinsburg 45 to 22; Crafton was outplayed by Carnegie 39 to 8; Coraopolis tossed out Dormont 20 to 18; McKees Rocks beat Stowe 31 to 14; and Verona won from Oakmont 27 to 26. Duquesne set down Homestead, 24 to 20.

In non-league school tilts Shady Side Academy defeated Catholic High, 35 to 23 and Millvale topped West View 38 to 22.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Ed Don Shikat, of Philadelphia, last night retained his claim to the world's heavyweight wrestling championship when he threw Stanislaus Zbyszko, of Poland, to the mat in 55 minutes with a body scissors and crotch hold.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—The Boston Braves have taken to their new manager, Bill McKechnie, with great gusto. He toiled on the mound for the first batting practice of the season and base hits rattled all over the field. fight show tomorrow night. Madison Square Garden officials are not concerned with what they described today as "bootleg" attempts to put the bouts on the air. Nor have they any objection to the press association wire reports being broadcast by the newspapers taking such services.

PRINCIPALS REST

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 26.—(INS)—Their training siege behind them, Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott took it easy today. From now on until they enter the ring for their 15-round battle here tomorrow night, they will confine their activities to lounging about or indulging in light calisthenics. Both say they are in fine fettle. The slight injury to Scott's right hand has completely mended.

There is virtually no betting on the outcome. Everybody likes Sharkey to win as he pleases, probably by a knockout in an early round. There is more talk about the attractive preliminary card than there is in the main bout.

Special trains were pouring into town today and disgorging fight fans, but not in sufficient numbers to keep the show from going into the red financially.

Warner Sees No Changes in Rules

PALO ALTO, Cal., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Glenn S. Warner, Stanford University football coach, expressed the opinion today that the rules will not be subject to any major change when the rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association meets in Absecon, N. J., March 21-25. Warner, who will attend the meeting, is not a member of the rules' committee but is on the advisory committee. He said efforts would be made to recodify and simplify the rules.

Dick Bartell appears to have the pole for the job. But if Engle and Sankey continue to show as they did yesterday they may make the road a bit tough for Richard the Lionhearted.

ENS OPTIMISTIC

Skipper Ens has been called before the "mike" of three sound picture machines to say something about his club and in every speech Jewel declared he expects the Pirates to be "up there" in fact Ens stated that the Pirates had a very fine chance to cop the flag in one or two of his little speeches. Vice President Sam Dreyfuss also thinks the team will be a warm contender all the way.

Chillysauce

The 1930 crop of youngsters is outstanding from the standpoint of potential appearance. The Pirates seem to have picked up a lot of well mannered kids of good breeding. Ben Sankey, Hal Finger, Martin Rigg, Orsatti, Lefty Clark, Engle, Jimmy Mosolf, Ralph Erickson, Bertrand Shuler, Evan Green, Walter Meier and one of two others would pass off as youngsters on a casual, while it is hard to find more ugly ducks than Andy Reid, Pat the Flower Lonyl Hulvey and Leon Chagnon, the stately French Canuck.

Earl Clemons, the lovable Duke is one of the strongest players in the squad. Earl is well liked by the rival boys and he has the Pirates' good opinion. Up to date, judging by what he accomplished in one short year, it will be hard to get the Brandywine boy off the main line and into a side track.

BOOL HAS HARD TASK

Al Bool, the crack catcher from Baltimore was fined $100 by Baseball Commissioner Landis because the Pirates may be the means of making Paris Home an step out and if that's it watches he lost he should add to the reputation he already has made.

A lot of nice things have been said about the ability of Hemsley, but this year seems to hold the test for the rugged young catcher. He can materially affect his batting average in this season in view of the competition and the opportunity offered to gain fame and fortune.

Jimmy Mosolf did not make any of the regular clubs of the league as he wrenched his ankle in practice. He has not given up on Mosolf as far as first is concerned. Jimmy wants to have an understudy for Gus Suhr so he instructed Mosolf to get a first base mitt this spring. It seems just about certain regarding Jimmy Mosolf that Jimmy Dykes of the Athletics is not a finished workman around the gateway, but just try to get him out of the Athletics lineup.

RAY AND MEINE CRACK 'WISE' FOR TALKIE

By Staff Correspondent

PASO ROBLES, Feb. 26.—When the members of the Ancient Order of Native Sons see and hear a talking picture soon to be shown in many sections of the country, they are apt to take punitive measures against a disloyal subject who wears the spangles of the Pirate crew.

For a third day in succession a big car with all the sound picture equipment backed into the ball park yesterday as the Pirates started their practice frolic. The energetic boss of the camera outfit wished to get a lot of unusual shots and he was quite successful.

Now when the Pirates reached the ball orchard the day was cool and rain was descending in sheets. The "talkie" men had just set up their recording "mike" for some good stuff as the shower broke. The director walked over a few feet to where Remy Kremer and Heinie Meine were warming up. The fellow didn't know that Kremer is a native son by birth, and one of this species is supposed to boost California sunshine, no matter where he roams or what the conditions.

Well, the director wanted to know if Kremer and Meine wouldn't do a little talking and acting for the movies.

"Just carry on the sort of a conversation you would follow if we were not shooting you," advised the camera boss and then he turned on the machine and Kremer and Meine went into their act. The rain being very heavy and the air raw and cold.

"How is your arm today, Frenchy," spoke Meine to open the dialogue and then without smiling and while a rather brave spectacle in the rain, Kremer got rid of this fine bit of sarcasm.

"Why I feel great, Meine. You know after all is said and done about training a ball club, there is nothing like getting a team out into this warm sunshine where a fellow can limber up and perspire and not be worried about the rain or cold."

If they don't show that reel a lot of good comedy will be lost—and if they do—well, Kremer might just as well remain in the East next fall.

Thumb Broken, Schmeling May Quit

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Max Schmeling, the German heavyweight slated to fight the Sharkey-Scott winner for the "world championship" in New York in June, broke his right thumb three weeks ago and may never fight again, according to a cablegram received from Berlin today by Frank J. Bruen, general manager of Madison Square Garden.

The message, Bruen stated, came from Karl Weigand, journalist and sportsman, who said Schmeling's injury had not responded satisfactorily to treatment thus far. It was not explained how the German boxer was hurt.

Garden officials scouted any idea that the Schmeling story was an attempt at last-hour ballyhoo for the Miami fight, designed to attach more significance to the outcome of the match between Sharkey and Scott.

John Law is the new football coach at Manhattan College . . . . But not the sort of a John Law you think. It's the John Law who starred on the Notre Dame elevens. The name of Heinie Meine, Pirate pitcher, is pronounced Meine. Paulie Walker, sensational New York welterweight, who drew with Sergt. Sammy Baker in Philadelphia Monday night, after previously having won over Joe Dundee, former champion, there, is only 19 years old. . . . George Godfrey, the Black Menace, has been matched to box Jack Gross, Jewish southpaw heavyweight, in Philadelphia, one week from next Monday night, coming in on the heels of a Primo Carnera-Ace Clark bout. Chuck Garland, now of Chicago, renewed quite a few old friendships during his visit over the last week-end. . . . Remember when he was the fair-haired boy of local tennisdom, about 10 years ago, and made the United States Davis Cup squad while a student at Yale? That was in the era when this country regained the trophy from Australia. Brooks and Wilding, of the Land Down Under, had things pretty much their own way until we knocked 'em loose with Tilden, Johnston and Williams going strong. Chuck played in the preliminary rounds of the competition, but did not make the trip to Australia for the challenge round. Pittsburgh was a live tennis town in those days, with Chuck and Bills McElroy and a few others able to give the bigwigs stiff competition and Harry Seymour the life of the sport in the role of promoter and general manager of tournaments. The Pittsburgh Tennis Association now is aiming to bring back a revival of those happy days. Remember the good old days when we had some bigtime billiard stars of our own in Charley Ellis and Charley McCourt and a few others? Few folks know that Pittsburgh boasts the world 18.2 amateur balkline champion in John A. Clinton, Jr., of the P. A. A. Jack Sharkey has gathered in something like $850,000 in purses in the seven years he has been campaigning as a heavyweight boxer since coming out of the Navy. He drew down $210,000 for his bout with Jack Dempsey in New York and $100,000 apiece for his bouts with Young Stribling and Tommy Loughran. He's swinging on the gate at Miami and will fall far under the $100,000 mark unless by some miracle business picks up by leaps and bounds there for his battle with Phil Scott tomorrow night.—HARRY KECK.

'Florida Crowd' of Financiers Found Bearish

By B. C. FORBES

"HOW'S business?" I asked Walter P. Chrysler.

"I don't know. I haven't kept it lately," was his half-facetious, half-serious reply.

The automobile magnate who has been so outstanding in Florida and is going on a brief cruise to tone up his health frankly admitted that business activity and general has proved rather disappointing.

It is not generally known that Walter Chrysler was among the very first of our great American industrialists to foresee that financial and business trouble was coming. He trimmed sail while others, less discerning, continued full speed ahead.

I caught Mr. Chrysler for only a moment while he was starting preparations for his cruise, but as he started off he said: "I'll be back in New York about the fifteenth of March and I would like to have a good talk then about things."

WALL STREET writers have repeatedly commented lately on "The Florida crowd's still bearish. They again sold stock yesterday."

I have been mixing with "The Florida crowd" and have found that that is true. Incidentally their pessimism hasn't been stopping them from having a full quota of pleasure. One of the most spectacular Palm Beach spenders is a stock exchange man whose firm encountered serious trouble during the panic. Whenever I get away from the daily grind life usually looks rosier. Not so this season with the financial notables cavorting Palm Beach festivities.

DEPRESSION or no depression, never before were so many yachts of American multi-millionaires skimming across the waters off Florida and farther South. The latest to appear is the beauty just built for A. P. Sloan, Jr., the frugal-minded, hard-working president of General Motors. It was characteristic of this human dynamo that he didn't take the time to come South in his yacht but used faster transportation.

If any man in the United States has earned a spell of play, it is Alfred Sloan. He has been a slave to business ever since on leaving college he took hold of a run-down property in which his father was interested and started to make it hum. His record has been one of unbroken success, thanks to inherent ability, intense study, mastery of engineering, acute business judgment, wholly extraordinary industriousness, and by no means least important, inexhaustible patience and persistiveness in handling other brainy men.

ANOTHER prominent man of affairs who is now in Palm Beach enjoying the first two-week vacation he has ever indulged in since he started work nearly 40 years ago in a humble capacity is Matthew C. Brush, president of the American International Corporation which he took hold of when run down and has rebuilt. Matt, a bachelor, is also something of a human dynamo, but, unlike Mr. Sloan, he has contrived to mix a good deal of fun with his fight for success.

The best thing for the country would be to let the stock market act perfectly naturally. There's been too much desire to force a too-hasty recovery, he remarked.

"Things will come out all right, but it would be foolish to manipulate quotations higher than actual conditions warrant. To do this might invite fresh trouble."

Matt Brush's hobby is elephants—living and every other conceivable kind. Said one of his friends as the two returned from golf: "Matt even went in for an elephant of a score this afternoon."

JULES S. BACHE, head of his own large and successful stock exchange firm, is worrying more about the current low prices for wheat, cotton and some other commodities than about current or prospective prices for stocks. Ordinarily of a highly optimistic nature, Mr. Bache agrees with the prevalent sentiment among financiers now in Florida that this is no time for rambunctiousness in stock marketwise.

W. C. DURANT presumably feels the same way, for his friends tell me he has planned a trip to Europe. Many expected that Durant would be ruined by the stock market's terrific collapse. But he wasn't. Like most people he is distinctly poorer than he was when securities were worth very much more. But you or I would probably be very willing to have what Durant still has left and bid goodbye to fretting over further money making.

EXCHANGE NOW SECONDARY MARKET

Commodities Now Come First in Speculative Price-Making Process

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—To an extraordinary extent, the New York Stock Exchange has temporarily become a secondary market in the great speculative price-making process, with the commodity exchanges the primary markets.

Sensitive stock traders to an increasing extent are nowadays asking "How's wheat?" and "How's cotton?" as they make up their own minds how to act in the stock market. The almost universal decline in the prices of raw materials since the middle of July has been an economic development of the utmost importance. The immediate visible news from the commodity field has been distinctly adverse, but those who take a cheerful view concerning the general business outlook are hopeful that their will be recoveries before farmers are ready to market new crops. The business significance of continued low commodity prices is a decline in the purchasing power of vast segments of the world's population.

To some extent the decline in commodity prices is an effect of business depression that has already taken place. Moreover, it is in part a result of punitive high interest rates which since have been superseded by a new world-wide central bank policy of cheap money. There is, however, usually a time lag between new monetary policies and their effect on business.

STABILIZATION SEEN

The economic sages of Harvard University are among those who believe that the world is at the threshold of stabilization in commodity prices.

At present, the current letter of the Harvard Economic Society points out, "improvement in commodity prices should be added materially by the reduced central bank rates both here and abroad. Stabilization in those commodities which form a large part of international trade should soon become apparent."

In the circumstances, after the precipitous decline in grain and cotton prices there is decreasing dissatisfaction with political interference in the commodity markets.

There is some feeling that in the attempt to minimize speculation in commodities the Federal Farm Board has been a factor in eliminating the beneficial effects which economists have long recognized have come from soundly conducted speculation. For example, in giving the hint that cotton might be stabilized around 16 cents a pound, the political agency discouraged speculative selling of futures, which is tantamount to short selling of stocks. Accordingly, the commodity markets have entered this critical period without the air cushion of a substantial short interest. The stock market during the debacle last autumn, it will be recalled, also suffered from a subnormal short interest.

Of course, ultimately supply and demand will stabilize prices, but if there had been the normal speculative interest in the market the market would have been two-sided and adjustments to new levels would have probably been made in a more orderly manner.

RESULTS NOT REASSURING

Politicians have long carelessly and often ignorantly denounced delicate financial machinery, and some progress has been made in curtailing the "wicked apparatus." Thus far the consequences of the "reforms" have been far from reassuring either to farmers or to the business public.

In spite of the ups and downs of speculation, Lee M. Maxwell, president of the Crowell Publishing Company, sees evidence of a continuance of undiminished investment buying power on the part of the American people in his own experience. A stock offering was oversubscribed in the ratio of two to one.

A byproduct of the tendency of banks in various parts of the country to be united through holding companies may be to cut out middlemen in the money market. This is suggested by the fact that the Marine Midland group of banks, with headquarters at Buffalo, were recently the successful bidders for $50,000,000 of 90-day treasury bills. Formerly, a middleman banking group would have taken the issue and resold it at a profit to banks.

ASKS DATE ON ERIE MERGER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today made public similar letters sent to the Nickel Plate Railroad, owned by the Van Sweringens, and the Pittsburgh and West Virginia, controlled by the Taplin brothers of Charles D. Mahaffie, finance director of the commission, calling upon them for specific information regarding their conflicting applications for control of the Wheeling and Lake Erie.

While the letters made no reference to the reported purchase of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia by the Pennroad Corporation, a holding company of the Pennsylvania Railroad, it is expected this phase will be brought out during hearings set for March 10 on the two applications.

The two roads were requested to prepare data on all inter-corporate relationships, holding company activities, etc., relating to their respective applications. Strict adherence to Mahaffie's instructions, it was made clear, necessarily will bring out any facts relating to the Pennroad Corporation.

Stock Market Pays Close Attention to Action of Commodities

THAT the stock market is paying close attention to the situation in commodities is evident from its current action. But more important it is worthy of note that floor brokers are keeping in constant touch with their offices or other sources of information on wheat during the day. Flashes from the floor imply the same tendency. These yesterday were generally embracing references to the effect of wheat on the stock market, as for example one which read "stocks doing better helped by firmer tone in wheat." This was received early in the day prior to the sharp break in wheat values which took place afternoon.

Another break in wheat at Chicago yesterday averaging 5 cents a bushel and forcing that commodity for March delivery below the $1 mark served to focus speculative attention almost wholly on the trend of prices on commodities. Yesterday's break below the $1 level marked the first time wheat had been under that price since May of last year when the spot month at that time sold as low as 93¼ cents a bushel. At that time the cause was found in promise of a "bumper" Canadian wheat crop. But hot and dry weather prevailing through the summer cut the actual Canadian wheat yield to almost half of the earlier indicated total and resulted in a crop scare which sent wheat prices kiting for an advance of around 71 to 75 cents a bushel. The present situation in wheat is due to the determination of European wheat buyers to resist the efforts of American and Canadian agencies to hold the price against them.

ALTHOUGH only a few weeks have gone by since the Bank of England reduced its bank rate from 5 to 4½ per cent report is current again particularly in London financial circles that another reduction is possible in the near future. Open market money rates at London have softened since the last cut was put into effect thus tending to lend some color to reports. Moreover Gov. Harrison of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York is now en route to Europe. The purpose of this trip has not been made known, but rumor has it that the heads of central banks are to have a conference some time shortly after his arrival. Current strength in sterling hardly suggests any immediate cut in the British rate but then other than normal conditions are operative in the foreign exchange market at present and have been for many months.

Market observers have been impressed by the action of Eastman Kodak and they feel that the issue is destined for higher levels, no matter what the general trend is. The almost constantly increasing demand for products manufactured by the company coming from the motion picture industry is being reflected in Eastman's earnings. In the past, management has been liberal in its treatment of stockholders and a continuance of this policy is looked for during the current year. Eastman is the leader in the film manufacturing industry.

THE motor group was featured yesterday by renewed activity and strength in Packard Motors. Reports from company's plants are to the effect production schedules at its Diesel aircraft engine unit are being increased and that within a short time deliveries in good-sized quantities will be a reality. Added to this is the belief that when Army Air Corps has completed its tests of the aircraft engine a satisfactory report will be rendered. The development of the Diesel engine will open up wide fields for Packard in other directions. Its automobile business thus far in 1930 is understood to be up to expectations.

Despite the professional pressure which is being applied in the market at the present time its action is viewed with satisfaction in some quarters. It is pointed out that the market seldom acts in accordance with the majority opinion and for this reason the long awaited reaction might be further delayed and a rally of sizeable proportions ensue from this point. Nevertheless, much will depend on the future course of commodity prices.

Standard Plate Note Extension Assured

BY GEORGE H. SNYDER

PLANS to temporarily tide the Standard Plate Glass Company over its financial difficulties will be successfully carried out it became known yesterday. Holders of over $2,400,000 of the five year 6 per cent notes which mature on March 1 have deposited their securities with the noteholders' protective committee.

The noteholders making the deposits have agreed to accept payment of the interest due on March 1 and 75 per cent of the value of their holdings in cash. They have also agreed to an extension of six months for the payment of the remaining 25 per cent. The extended portion of the notes will bear interest at 6 per cent.

Three-fourths Needed

A TOTAL of $3,000,000 of the notes is outstanding. The committee needed deposits of 75 per cent of this amount or $2,250,000 to place the extension plan into effect.

Under the indenture of the notes, the agreement of holders of 25 per cent of the issue will be necessary to bring an action against the company because of default. The deposit of more than 75 per cent effectively blocks any such action and will give the company time to work out of its present embarrassed situation.

Cash Available

TWO weeks ago when the deposit of notes was requested the company announced that it would have $2,250,000 available in cash at the maturity date. Part of this was secured by the sale of the paint business and of warehouse properties. It is the company's plan to raise the funds to meet the extended portion of the notes by the sale of additional assets which are not necessary for the production of glass. These assets include remaining warehouses and the abandoned plant at Springdale.

No sales of additional assets have been made during the past few weeks but negotiations are under way which may lead to the closing of further sales within the near future.

Working Capital Ample

OFFICIALS of the company have expressed the opinion that the $400,000 of working capital to remain following the payment to be made on March 1 will be sufficient for the conduct of the business. The company has no debts other than current bills beside the $3,000,000 of notes.

The present difficulties arise from the fact that the company's operations have been unprofitable for the past three years, making it impossible to refund the issue of notes. Foreign competition has been responsible for the unprofitable period.

To Show Loss

THE annual report to be published soon will show that the year's operations resulted in a deficit. The loss in the first nine months of the year amounted to $290,579. It is generally believed that an operating deficit was shown in the final quarter of the year. The statement for the year will also be affected by the adjustments made necessary through the sale of assets during the past few months.

WALL STREET HEARS

That Paramount has arranged to acquire certain minor theater properties through an exchange of stock, a part of the arrangement being a guarantee of a market price of $80 for Paramount by June.

That Corn Products Refining's earnings statement, to be published shortly, will show 1929 net of close to $6 a share.

That Magma Copper's earnings in the current quarter will cover dividend requirements and the regular payment of $1.25 will be ordered at the next meeting.

STEEL DEMAND TAPERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Steel demand has tapered mainly because of smaller specifications from the automobile industry, but average daily production continues at a good rate, with no sharp recession in early prospect, Iron Age this week's summary.

"Automobile steel makers specializing in automobile steels have been forced to curtail operations. Other producers are [illegible] further expansion, it adds.

"The ingot rate at Chicago, influenced by releases of pipe tonnage, has risen from 90 to 95 per cent of capacity, and Alabama operations average 94 per cent. On the other hand, output at Pittsburgh and the valleys has receded from 80 to 75 per cent. Has steel production for the country at large is estimated at 80 per cent, compared with 82 per cent a week ago, while the rate of steel corporation plants remains unchanged at 85 per cent.

"A more conservative viewpoint prevails in the steel trade than a month ago following the spectacular consumption of steel this year at only 60 per cent of that of 1929, but until the arrival of open weather gives definite indications of the volume of retail demand for cars all calculations must be regarded as mere conjectures. Ultimate consumer purchases are particularly difficult to anticipate in view of the unsettled business situation that has prevailed since the stock market crash and, in adhering to a cautious policy, motor car makers are trying to avoid the danger of overproduction.

"To the uncertainties as to automotive steel requirements have been added contingencies that may affect the flow of steel to the building industry and farm equipment plants. President Hoover's pleas to Congress for economy, while understandable as a check on pork barrel legislation, have raised doubts as to the extent of the government's public works program, which had been counted on to stimulate business activity later in the year. The recent declines in wheat and cotton prices have also caused concern for the future, although the manufacture of agricultural machinery has not yet been affected.

"Railroads, fabricators, shipyards and farm equipment plants continue to take steel at a high rate. The carriers have placed numerous supplementary rail orders, calling for 1,000 to 3,000 tons each, swelling the excellent backlogs of rail mills. Freight equipment purchases thus far this year have exceeded those for the same period in 1929 by 1,000 cars. Railroad steel now accounts for 38 per cent of the total production of a leading steel interest."

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Rise Sharply — Local Stocks Firm

STOCK MARKET STAGES BROAD ADVANCE

Sharp Recovery in Wheat Acts as Stimulus to Shares; Dozen at Peaks for 1930

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—A broad upward movement of prices took place in today's stock market, with buying stimulated by the sharp recovery in wheat prices from the record lows established yesterday. Scores of stocks were marked up 1 to 8 points, at least a dozen of them to new peak prices for the year. Trading showed a moderate expansion in volume, but largely to a revival of pool activities.

Business news was not entirely favorable in character. The weekly steel trade reviews reported a tapering in the demand for steel, but indicated that no sharp recession was in early prospect. Iron Age attributed the decline largely to the curtailed buying in automobile steels, other producers either holding their own or increasing their output. The Iron Age composite pig iron price was at the lowest level since 1928.

CAR LOADINGS GAIN

Freight car loadings for the week ended February 15 were about 5,000 cars above the week before, but nearly 70,000 below the corresponding week of last year. Crude oil production took another big jump last week.

Call money renewed unchanged at 4½ per cent, but the supply was plentiful, and the rate was shaded in the "outside market" to 4 per cent. The time money market was quiet with rates unchanged.

High-priced industrials and specialties again led the recovery in the stock market. Vulcan Detinning ran up 8 points, Eastman Kodak 7¾, American Machine and Foundry and Warren Bros. 7½ each. J. I. Case 7, Auburn Auto 6¾, and American Tobacco B, Diamond Match, Westinghouse Electric first preferred and Union Pacific 5 to 5½.

MAKE WIDE GAINS

Among the many issues to sell 3 to 4½ points higher were American Bank Note, American Water Works, A. M. Byers, Columbia Carbon, Houston Oil, International Business Machines, Johns Manville, Lambert, Liggett & Myers B, New York Central, North American Company, Underwood Elliott Fisher, Vanadium Steel and Western Union.

There were only a few outstanding soft spots. Pere Marquette dropped 5½ points, Vulcan Detinning A 5 and Pressed Steel Car preferred 3½.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—The Curb market moved moderately higher today, influenced by the brisk upturn on the "big board" and improvement in the grain markets. Trading was in comparatively small volume, however, and the movement lacked the vitality of the upturn on the stock exchange, where short covering was undoubtedly more influential.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

GILLESPIE GOES ON STAND

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(INS.)—Georges J. Gillespie, 66, took the witness stand today in Supreme Court, where Mrs. Frances M. Brandon's $500,000 breach of promise suit against him is being heard.

Gillespie's testimony opened the defense's case. His attorney, Theodore Kiendl, said Gillespie would be the only witness called.

Gillespie testified he had been a lawyer 36 years and formerly was a member of the State Board of Charities.

Mrs. Brandon, who was on the stand six days, heard Gillespie's testimony, which was a refutation of Mrs. Brandon's breach of promise claims.

Frothblowers' Chief, King's Surgeon, Dies

WEST LULWORTH, England, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Sir Alfred Fripp, noted surgeon and head of the Ancient Order of Frothblowers, is dead here.

Sir Alfred Fripp was surgeon in ordinary to the King and to the Duke of Connaught and was a consulting surgeon in the royal navy. He was known as the "Grand Typhoon" of the Frothblowers, an organization he founded several years ago which, apart from drinking beer, had entirely charitable aims.

Has to Keep on Her Feet

"My work is keeping a rooming house in New York and I have to keep on my feet. I was weak and tired and didn't seem to feel well at all. Some of my friends told me how good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was and I decided to try it. I took it four times a day and it helped me very much. I feel better in all ways now."—Mrs. Marie Vriesenga, 2062 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y.

THOUGHT SHE WAS INVALID FOR LIFE

Lady Asserts World's Tonic Helped Her Over a Crisis.

"Only a few weeks ago I thought I was sick for the rest of my life and I did not care much how short that was, except for my children," said Mrs. C. Morgan, of Butler, Pa., to the World's Tonic interviewer. "I had been getting worse and worse in spite of the treatments I took, until every day my stomach would swell up after eating and I belched a great deal of the time. Sometimes there was much pain over my heart and when I tried to go upstairs or walk up a hill I had to stop and get my breath frequently. Those things came on after the birth of my baby and I had to bottle feed the child which has never been very strong. I had pains in my back and legs and when I would stoop over I got so dizzy that I had to hold onto something to get up. My bowels were very obstinate, so that I had to take strong physic nearly every day. I had dark circles under my eyes and the back of my neck felt like it would break, the bottoms of my feet were so hot I had to stick them out from under the covers at night.

"Nothing I took did me any good. One day my husband heard one of the men in the mill talking about how much World's Tonic, the new medicine, had helped his wife, and on his way home he stopped and got a bottle of it. I scolded him for wasting his money, but it was one of the best investments he ever made in his life. That first bottle went right to the trouble. My bowels became regular, and one by one the troubles I had cleared up. Now I am on my fifth bottle, and it is wonderful how much better I am. The pains have left me, I am no longer dizzy, and I relish the food I eat.

"If I had known of World's Tonic six months earlier I would never have suffered so much, and I feel sure my baby would have been stronger and livelier. I certainly recommend World's Tonic to women who suffer as I did." This valuable medicine can be obtained of Dow's, May's & Leggett's, Mayflower, or at any other first class drug store.

PRESENTS THE STAR OF "DISRAELI" IN ANOTHER AMAZING RÔLE

He had the manners of a Chesterfield—

His wit was as keen as his executioner's sword—his conduct as refined as his cruelty . . .

Dispensing barbaric vengeance in a dinner coat, he flicks a cigarette lighter as he mounts the altar to administer the ancient blood-rites of the fearful Goddess of his savage race . . .

Ruling his half-naked subjects with gloves bought in Bond Street, he plays billiards with the captives from the outer world whom he has sentenced to a terrible doom . . .

And his phonograph furnishes the music for a tribal dance of death!

Mere action could never convey the subtle shadings of this strangely fascinating character—despot of a forgotten corner of the world... But thanks to Vitaphone the famous voice of Arliss evokes every atom of the consumate cunning, sly guile, and polished perfidy that made "THE GREEN GODDESS" a companion masterpiece to "Disraeli" in Arliss' blazing stage career!

GARLAND CHARGES BUDGET SECRECY

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

THERE is another story of the late Alexander P. Moore which, to the best of our knowledge, has not been published. The other character in the story is Congressman Stephen G. Porter, who also supplies the facts.

By appointment Ambassador Moore and Porter met at the railway station in Paris 15 minutes before the departing time of the train which was to take them both to Moore's embassy at Madrid.

"Pardon me," Moore greeted Porter lightly, "but inasmuch as you are the author of the law which requires us all to have visas, have you had your passport to Spain approved?"

Congressman Porter admitted he had neglected to do so.

The ambassador made much of the oversight. A newspaperman, he assured the congressman that here was excellent copy for Page One of the papers back home. Moore saw to it that Porter was allowed to cross the boundary line, but he warned his guest that he would tell the American newspaper correspondents of the incident.

It so happened that one of the reasons Congressman Porter, as chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, was in Europe was to determine the needs of the American embassies. An inspiration came to Porter.

"How much rent do you have to pay out of your own pocket for maintaining the embassy?" Porter asked casually.

"About $1,000 dollars a month," Moore answered.

"How would you like the United States government to relieve you of this burden by building a nice home for its ambassador?"

"Fine!" Moore agreed. "It should be done."

"Well," offered Porter, "I'll promise you that it will be given early consideration if you kindly forget to mention a certain incident to the newspapermen."

The ambassador forgot.

We have been reading the Pitt Weekly, which is the student publication of the university, for a half-dozen years and we think the students who are publishing the paper this year are doing a better job than any of their predecessors. The paper is well-written, well made-up and interesting. It's reporters go out of their way to avoid the cut-and-dried stuff which clutters the campus, and furnish the readers with highly readable stuff about anybody or anything connected with the university. As a poor example, in the present issue there is an item which tells of the bothersome questions which the university's telephone operators must answer, even to weather conditions on the days of football games.

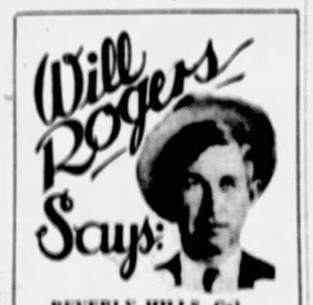
If we told the truth we'd admit that we rather resent these amateur newspapermen being able on a comparative minute's notice (What, pray, is a comparative minute?) to accomplish things. We do, therefore, resent the activities of Norman L. Park, the editor of the Pitt Weekly, and his associate editors, Charles Hyatt, Florence Luman, Margaret Reinhers, Virginia Griffiths, Robert Remaley, Theodore Savage, Ben Sufrine and Robert Machesney.



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 26.

WE got Calvin talking. At a Chamber of Commerce dinner he attributed California's climate to the fact they had insurance companies, but as usual, "Gracious Grace" pulled the evening out of the fire. She was seated next to one of those things they call "the speaker of the evening." While he was trying to tell "why 1930 would be greater than any other 1930 we had ever enjoyed," he had laid his watch on the table.

You see he was speaking against time and not ideas. She copped the watch and hid it in her New England grouch bag. With the watch gone the poor fellow couldn't tell when he was through. So Mrs. Coolidge will go down in history as being the only person that ever got anything out of a Chamber of Commerce speech.

Yours,

WILL.

Chickie Cries When Jake Says He Loves Her

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Chickie Bryce is attending business college when the story opens. Her father, Jonathan, fears the pitfalls ahead of her, but his wife allays his fears. Chickie gets a position in a brokerage office. Through one of her co-workers, Janina Knowles, she meets Jake Munson, a rich bachelor. Mary Blake, Chickie's closest friend, marries a poor young chemist, much to Chickie's regret. Mary's brother, Jimmy, begs Chickie to marry him, but without success. Chickie meets Barry Dunne at a party given by Munson. She learns that the party is to last all night and Barry takes her home. The next night Barry calls at her home. Barry takes Chickie motoring, tells her she's beautiful and kisses her. Munson meets Chickie and insists on taking her to dinner. He asks her if she'll be one of a party on a yachting cruise. Chickie goes out often with Barry and the depth of her affection for him frightens her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIX.

"HAVING a pretty gay time, Chickie?" Jimmy had a hard grip on her arm, holding her back so that she was forced to walk slowly.

She felt his eyes draw sharply against her profile. She answered lightly, yet with a disturbing pang, "Oh, salubrious, Jimmy!"

"Which is it going to be, the red-head or the rich one?"

"What are you talking about?"

"Which are you going to marry?"

"Why—the idea—"

"Well, you don't have to tell me, I suppose. You're not engaged yet?"

"Of course not! I'm not even thinking of it."

He shut his lips tightly. Without looking at him, Chickie knew that his face kindled with excitement. Her fingers touched his and were caught in a harsh clasp. He forced out his next question after a long, jagged pause. "I suppose—humph—I'm out of it altogether, Chickie?"

She turned her hand in his. "Jimmy, you make me feel terrible. I'm not going to get married—not for years and years. Why—just because I'm having a little fun. You go out yourself, don't you? Why—I won't think of settling down—"

"You say that, but look here, Chickie. It's none of my damn business, but you're not trying out any of that wild stuff you told me about, are you?"

"Wild stuff?" Her breath caught in a little gasp. "Jimmy, you old funny! Well, listen to the darling!"

Pugilistic

'Would Knock Other Fellows' Heads Off

"Aw, don't kid about it, Chickie!" He doubled up his fists, a-swinging along, truculent. "If I thought you were treating these fellows to any petting parties I'd lie around here and knock their blocks off!"

Her face, suddenly white, flashed against his with hurt indignation. He turned from it brusquely.

"I didn't mean it, Chickie. Honestly. But gee whiz—" When she didn't answer he said in his quick, impulsive way, looking at her humbly. "Look here, Chickie, are you going to get sore at me, after all these years? Say—can't I even pull the brother stuff, any more?"

"But just the same, Jimmy, that was pretty cruel."

"Maybe it was. But I happen to know a thing or two about fellows. It makes me kind of wild thinking about you and things—" He searched her face, an agony of tenderness in his look. She was all at once in a tumult—her eyes filled. He said huskily, "Aw, Chickie—don't—I didn't mean a word of it. You know I didn't. Don't I know you, though!"

They reached her door just as a delivery boy brought up a huge basket of flowers. Without seeming to notice, Jimmy said, "Good-by, Chickie."

Autumn Flowers

Third Basket From Jake In Two Weeks

She took the basket and ran into her room. Autumn flowers of gold and orange with long trailing ribbons of blue larkspur, Jake's card. The third basket in two weeks.

Heat swept over her in a rapid, throbbing wave, made her ears pound. She stared at the flaunting beauty of the shaggy chrysanthemums.

She was hearing Jimmy; listening to a sudden wild storm of questions breaking in her own mind. He knew fellows—Did he?

She had refused obstinately to look at the world except as she wished to see it—a lovely, delightful place—full of good times—wondrous Sundays under a tree with some one happy of heart—luxurious evenings with a princely, lavish fellow like Jake. Why should one ask for more? One could go on in this happy carelessness years and years. So she assured herself.

Now she was remembering things Jake said—his eyes possessing hers—hand warm, insistent on hers. She drew a hard, excited breath—trembling.

"Oh, mother! You frightened me. Yes—Mr. Munson."

Jennie touched the flowers dreamily, a smile on her lips. "Do you care for him, Chickie?"

"Why, mother! Such things as you ask! I've only known the man well about a month."

Joyous Weeks

Chickie Rides on Tide Of Happiness

"You've seen a great deal of him. And he sends you these flowers. He isn't a boy, Chickie. You must remember it's not right to trifle with a man's heart."

"Oh, ho, mother! Don't make me larf!" She was about to give some flippant, caustic rejoinder, but she turned and saw Jennie's plump neck with a thin straggle of hair falling from the amber comb; Jennie's white apron tied in a neat bow at her waist. She thought with a clutch of pity at her throat: "Lot you know, Jennie! Lot you know of men!"

She went back with heightened agitation to her own questions. What were the things Jimmy knew about fellows? Did he mean all of them—Barry, too? No—she wouldn't have that—

But Jake? Things he said of marriage, of love, of Mary, came now hot, stabbing into her mind. Was he only sounding her out?

She went over to the window and stared a long time into the back garden. If the world was like this; if men had only such thoughts in their minds—well—her eyes blinked. She closed them with a stinging bitterness.

Behind her were joyous weeks that had swept her along on a sparkling, quick tide of happiness. Barry, grinning at her from his window; meeting her at noon and rushing her off to lunch. When his eyes met hers a surging restlessness charged through her. She found herself often looking at his mouth—beautifully chiseled—so young. He caught her once or twice; with a merry twinkle drew his lips together: "Ready, willing and waiting — ah — you sweet

DENY TAXICAB SERVICE BAD

Denial was made yesterday in a hearing before the Public Service Commission that Yellow and Green Taxicab Companys, prior to the strike, were not giving residents of Aspinwall and O'Hara Township proper taxicab service.

Arthur R. Airey of Aspinwall, who conducts a bus service between Aspinwall Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Veterans Hospital, several weeks ago made the charge, in applying for permission to operate a regular taxicab service in Aspinwall and O'Hara Township.

Officers of both companies told Examiner W. E. Best that they operate virtually a 24 hour service and are equipped to give the people of the territory complained of, ample accommodations. A decision in the case will be announced later.

Relief Association Of Miners Disbands

Disbanding of the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association, organized more than 30 years ago, is announced in a communication sent to friends and supporters by Samuel Harper, secretary and general agent, connected with the association since March 2, 1900. Headquarters are at 631 Penn avenue. Lack of funds, due to the loss of the recent coal miners' strike, is responsible for the action, Harper says.

The aims of the association have been to aid needy miners and members of their families. Records show that during its existence 4,000 cases were given attention.

LAST RITES PAID SOPHIE LEVIN

A passion for service and the love of doing good were attributes that lifted Sophie Levin from her environment and placed her name among the men and women of Pittsburgh who have accomplished real deeds of greatness, was the substance of the tribute paid yesterday by Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson at the funeral services for Miss Levin in Rodef Shalom Temple.

"Over this broad land today there are prayers, from the widow and the orphan who have been helped, and whose lives have been brightened by her pioneer service," said Rabbi Goldenson.

Attending the funeral were many of her associates in the Mothers' Pension League, the Red Cross and other relief organizations. These included the Rev. Dr. C. A. Voss, Frank J. Lanahan, the Rev. Dr. Homer A. Flint, Hermann F. Rueff, Senator Frank J. Harris, J. W. Johnston, Mrs. Frances Speer Reed, Mrs. Marcus Spiro, Leo G. Griffith, Julius Levin, Isador Williams and Louis Nevins.

3 GIRLS HERE IN 'SCANDALS,

Usually when they leave the old home town for Broadway they're disillusioned and return as prodigal. But Jean Scott, who was 15 then and Clare Scott, who was all of 14, went straight to George White and told him they wanted to go on the stage. (This is not a press agent's yarn).

Mr. White was so astonished at the idea of two little gals trying to crash his noted "Scandals" without experience that he gave them a tryout and five minutes later they signed on the dotted line.

There were two of them, then the same that used to go to school at Resurrection School and South Hills High.

Now there are three, and the third is Betty, 16. This is Betty's first season in show business. They sing and dance and announce numbers in the edition of the "Scandals," which is in town.

This week they're the guests of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Scott, of Wainbell avenue, Dormont. Betty is the brunet, Clare and Jean the blondes.

Latter Day Saints To Hold Conference

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints will hold a conference Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock in its chapel, 4928 Wallingford street. Apostle Melvin J. Ballard, of the Council of Twelve, from Salt Lake City, Utah, and James H. Moyle, of the Eastern States Mission, will each deliver an address at this meeting.

FIGHT BREWS ON EXPENSE MEASURE

$27,664,000 Allocated Out Of Council, Member Claims; Many Pay Raises Included

Charges by Councilman Robert Garland that the figures had been arrived at "somewhere and somehow outside the room" marked a session at which the Council Finance Committee belatedly approved the 1930 budget, totaling approximately $27,664,000.

The Garland charges, immediately denied by Councilman John S. Herron, presaged a stormy session when the budget comes up for final passage Thursday or Friday. Councilman Charles Anderson, refusing to vote on the approval of the measure, said he would do his talking when the special gathering of Council is held to consider it.

The budget was featured by the creation of new positions entailing an outlay of $330,000, salary and wage increases totaling $1,145,000, and salary and wage reductions totaling $230,000.

NEW POLICE DISTRICTS

The bulk of the salary increase is for police and firemen, voted almost unanimously by the people of Pittsburgh at the last primary election. One hundred and thirty-five new employes are added to the police and fire bureaus. The South Side, where Carrick, Knoxville and Hays Borough have been annexed, received new police and fire districts.

The largest individual salary increase is for Director of Public Health C. B. Maits, who is boosted from $7,000 to $8,000, to take care of a legislative act that reduced his pay that amount by the abolition of fees. The city's two lieutenants of detectives went from $2,700 to $3,180.

The appropriation for the Flood Commission was dropped. Councilman Garland protested against this. The county earlier in the year had abandoned the appropriation. The city's usual appropriation was $3,500.

FUNDS ALLOCATED

The wage increases follow: Police and firemen, $785,000; a 10 per cent increase for all employes paid by the day, $175,000; a boost of $120 to make salaries of a number of minor employes $2,040 annually, $160,000; and scattered raises, small in each instance, according to members of Council, $45,000.

The new positions are: Eighty in the Bureau of Police, including 38 patrolmen, four detectives and 18 other officers; 55 in the Bureau of Fire, including 33 hosemen and laddermen, officers, inspectors and clerks; about 20 additional inspectors in scattered bureaus; about 25 additional doctors, nurses and employes in the Tuberculosis Hospital and Clinic and the Bureau of Child Welfare, and from 15 to 20 additional clerical jobs.

Salary adjustments and reductions in the Bureaus of Engineering, Bridges and Structures and Water, due partly to a reduction in force as bond issue projects are completed, is included, totaling $150,000. Similar changes in the Bureau of Highways and Sewers, also reductions, total $50,000. There is an $80,000 reduction in Sinking Fund appropriations.

FUNDS HELD UP

The amounts for the City-County building and the market houses have not been allocated, pending action on reports made by the Real Estate Board saying all were extravagantly handled. Anderson questioned whether the amount set aside for wages is sufficient to meet increases in union rates.

Of the total, $5,027,000 previously had been appropriated for January and February. The budget calls for a tax levy of 26 mills on land and 13 mills on buildings, an increase of one mill on the first and one-half mill on the second over last year.

Better Fire Protection Brings Insurance Cut

A general reduction in insurance rates on dwellings in Allegheny County, where fire protection is regarded as adequate, has been announced by the Allegheny County Board of Fire Underwriters.

The reductions have been made by the insurance companies doing business in the Pittsburgh territory. The various companies, both local and outside concerns, are now engaged in notifying agents of the changes.

The new rate is 40 cents for each $100 insurance for a period of three years on brick dwellings, as against 50 cents per $100 the old rate and 65 cents per $100 insurance on frame dwellings, as against 80 cents, the old rate. This rate applies to the city, boroughs and townships, having proper fire protection.

It was stated at the office of the Board of Fire Underwriters that improved fire protection accorded residents of most sections of the entire county, together with decreased losses due to this safeguard, is no doubt responsible for the reductions. Insurance agents declare that the reductions likely will result in increased insurance business.

Furrier's Pet Fox Shot, Ill Fortune Follows

Dame fortune has taken a dislike to Albert Smith, furrier at 636 Penn avenue. Smith's lack of luck began last Thursday when C. M. Lowell, chief of Forest Hills Borough police, bagged Smith's pet fox.

Yesterday fire broke out on the third floor of the building occupied by Smith's fur shop and ruined a part of his furs. Chief Lowell believed the fox to be a wild one.

Even though Smith suffers a financial loss by the fire, he finds time to mourn the passing of his one-time pet. In one sense the fox and Smith were business partners.

Attracting customers was Reynard's job—he was on display in the window until he grew too large. Smith then gave him to a farmer boy living near Forest Hills borough on the William Penn highway. There the fox grew a bit wild, often escaping his cage to make scouting tours about the country. Neighbors complained of losing chickens. Thursday the fox lost his life to Chief Lowell.

Smith bought the fox nine years ago from a soldier boy. Today Smith is planning to make a neckpiece from its pelt—providing, of course, that the chief's bullets didn't do too much harm.

TWO AUTO THEFT SUSPECTS SHOT BY POLICEMAN

WOUNDED MAN FLEES AFTER SHOTS

Officer Observes Men Exchange Plates; Suspects Open Fire at Approach

An alleged automobile thief was shot and captured and his companion escaped, although wounded, during an early morning gun battle with Policeman John Hooper, in front of the officer's home at 805 Watson street. Hooper exchanged more than a dozen shots with the man who escaped.

The wounded man said he was James Owens, 24, of Los Angeles, Cal. He told police he did not know the identity of his companion.

Policeman Hooper is a turnkey at Central Station. He was preparing to retire when he saw the pair, he said, changing license plates on an automobile parked across the street from his home.

Owens is in a critical condition in the Mercy Hospital, wounded in the abdomen and in the right arm.

Hooper told other officers the men turned and drew guns when he called to them. Owens' companion opened fire. Hooper returned fire and Owens fell.

The other alleged robber began backing toward Magee street and Hooper followed. Finally the man fled, holding his side.

PRAISES OFFICER

Returning to the wounded man Hooper removed his revolver and called the police patrol. During the ride to the hospital Owens told Wagonman Roy Wickman that Hooper was "The gamest cop I ever saw."

Owens said he had been in Pittsburgh since Christmas and admitted stealing machines, police say. He said the machine they were working on at the time of the shooting had been stolen yesterday in the downtown district.

Homicide detectives this morning were to question Owens regarding several robberies here. They also are watching the hospitals and physicians' offices believing the wounded companion will seek medical attention.

Two armed Negroes obtained $15 from Harry Mitchell, of 705 Duff street, who they held up in Roberts street, near Wylie avenue, early today.

ROB MAN, STEAL CAR

Two masked and armed highwaymen early today stole $75 in cash and two rings valued at $335 from Andrew Zitelli, of 6427 Clifford street, East End, and then escaped in his automobile. The machine was recovered two hours later a short distance from the scene of the holdup.

Zitelli told police he was getting out or his car in front of his home when the pair approached and threatened him with revolvers. In addition to taking the cash they took a $300 diamond ring he was wearing and $35 wedding ring belonging to his wife which he was carring in a pocket.

EMPLOYERS HIT IN LAX FIRE PRECAUTION

Instruction of Watchmen Guarding Property Urged At Final School Session

Employers who hire men to watch their plants and do not instruct them in their duties, especially in guarding against fire, were criticized by Capt. J. J. Conway, of the Cincinnati salvage squad, in the Chamber of Commerce last night. He spoke at the final session of the fire prevention school sponsored by the chamber for janitors, night watchmen and building superintendents.

"An employer will go to considerable trouble to have a guard for a messenger carrying $2,000," declared the captain, "but he is indifferent to the watchman guarding $500,000 worth of property. Nor does he seem to care to take the time to find out whether the watchman knows his duties, or whether the man knows anything about sprinkler systems, fire-extinguishers or where the gas or water valves are located."

DISARMS THUG, THREE FLEE

Sam Siegal, proprietor of a meat market at 3110 Niagara street, routed three bandits who invaded his shop when he wrested a revolver from one of them last night.

The trio stepped out of a stolen automobile, entered the market and ordered Siegal to throw up his hands.

The machine, police said, was reported as stolen from the North Side a short time before. It was towed to a garage.

VET INSURANCE AWARD STANDS

The government's motion for a new trial in the case of Charles Anderson, Negro, of Sharon, Pa., war veteran, who was awarded a verdict for $6,900 by a jury in Federal Court November 15, 1929, in an action brought against the government to recover money on a $10,000 war risk insurance policy, was denied in an opinion handed down by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

The case attracted much interest owing to the fact it was the first trial in a large number of such cases pending in the court, in which war veterans brought actions to recover on war risk insurance policies because of permanent disabilities suffered while in military service.

The court in its opinion held that there was evidence in the case from which the jury might properly find that Anderson was permanently disabled prior to his discharge from military service April 5, 1919. His claim was for monthly payments from then until April 11, 1929, when the suit was entered.

Judge Schoonmaker held that the courts have held that, under war risk insurance, total disability results when there is any impairment of mind or body which prevents the disabled person from following continuously any substantial gainful occupation. The fact that the insured may be able to perform some simple kind of physical labor intermittently does not change the total disability status, he recited.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Do you think police should break up unemployment parades, even if they know there are communists among the marchers?

GERTRUDE MOELLER, Sharpsburg, private secretary: "I think they should allow the unemployed to parade if they want to. There is no reason why they should break up a perfectly orderly parade. The men should have permission to protest against anything they don't like, so long as they don't cause trouble."

Miss Moell

MRS. RUTH BIEKMAN, Crafton, assistant service cashier: "If there is any rioting to them, they should be broken up. If they're orderly, however, I'd give them permission to parade. Their demonstrations should be orderly and self-restrained. Of course, they do have a lawful right to hold their parades."

Mrs. Biekman

SALOME JANSEN, Crafton, clerk: "I think what the unemployed need is a "break." Believe me, there are plenty of people out of work in Pittsburgh, and everywhere else. You have to fight to get work these days. In some manner, they have to show how many of them there are, so the public will realize how bad their problem is, and do something about it. If they want to parade, they should be allowed to. Of course, the police should force them to be orderly."

Miss Jansen

H. R. BIEKMAN, Crafton, vacuum sweeper service manager: "Any demonstration that's unlawful should be broken up. In Cleveland, they just about wrecked the court house. If they haven't any permission to make a demonstration, the police have every right to stop them. I don't see why they shouldn't have a permit to march, though. Rioting, however, should be stopped."

H. R. Biekman

CATHERINE STALEY, South Hills, service cashier: "Yes, the police should break them up. They shouldn't be allowed to parade. What good does it do them? I suppose, if they're quiet about it and don't cause any trouble, they do have a legal right to march, but the police ought to stop them just as soon as trouble starts."

Miss Staley

PAUL C. McKENZIE, Fulton building, sales engineer: "What good does it do them to parade? It seems to me that there are lots of other ways for them to attain their ends. But if they must parade, they seem to me to have a perfect right to do so. They should be granted permits, so long as they are orderly. No, I don't think their meetings should be broken up."

STRIKERS AID DESERTED WIFE

Mrs. Albert Hoffman, 3341 Forbes street, took little Billie, her 10-month-old baby, to Morris, Pa., yesterday.

The day before she was penniless. She and her little boy faced hunger, cold, alone against the world. And the world seemed unfriendly; it just didn't care.

Her husband had driven a taxi cab until the strike come on. By close saving, they had managed to get along. Milk for baby, homely meals for the two of them, was all they asked.

As the strike continued, and weeks passed, their little household became pressed for the needs of life. Then, she says, her husband left. She and Billie were alone, to fend for themselves.

She appealed to the strikers. They agreed to sacrifice of their own relief fund to help her.

"I only wanted money to take Billie to my brother-in-law's, in Morris. Then I want to come back here and find a job, if I can," she said.

"The boys gave me $4," she continued. "That will help. I know they couldn't even afford that. Then they brought me to their soup kitchen, gave me a meal. I haven't had very much to eat recently, but neither have the strikers.

"Well, I'll get work, somehow. And my man will come back to me, I know."

Mrs. Hoffman was a favorite with the strikers when she visited their soup kitchen. She shared their food companionably and spread visible cheer among them, they said.

Dick Powell, master of ceremonies at the Stanley Theater, was on hand to cheer the men. During his visit, he inspected their quarters, helped serve food and passed out some of the food baskets to the men.

The men seemed in good spirits and claimed they were "hungrily fighting."

Jewish Unit Plans to Aid Idle

PITTSBURGH Section, National Council of Jewish Women, is planning a new activity—a service shop for unemployed men which will be located beside the present Service Shop in Oakland avenue. Mrs. Raymond Kaufman, president, broke the news yesterday at the Council's bundle day luncheon, an affair which took its name from the fact that a "bundle of anything saleable" for the present Service Shop was the ticket of admission.

VARIOUS TYPES OF CAPES FAVORED FOR SPRING WEAR

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 26.—The cape juts out in the swirling sea of fashion into which we are shortly to take our spring plunge. Every type of garment seems to show some sort of a cape with all kinds of deft and clever treatments and variations. Day clothes both of the sport and formal type, evening dresses of every description, coats and coat frocks, negligees and nightgowns are all to be found at the sign of the cape. The ensemble with full cape has been shown in some collections, but has not been much in evidence at the Riviera resorts as yet. It has a swagger to it that makes it ideal for the tall dashing type of woman and and it lends a romantic note that is intriguing if it is not too strongly stressed. The caped coats so far shown are very pleasing and will no doubt be the choice of the younger set which likes something jaunty and an animated swing to its clothes. The cape-back will swing an evening frock into success and will be much seen on chiffons and other sheer frocks for both day and evening.

IT HAS been noticed that this season many houses showed coat frocks in their collections, and it is thought that this type of garment will find some degree of popularity this Spring, worn with fox scarfs. If you are contemplating the purchase of a coat-dress, we trust that the model here will give you a definite idea of what constitutes Paris, 1930 version of it, as interpreted by the house of Martial et Armand. This model is of heavy waist-length cape. The gilet and narrow cuffs are of beige crepe georgette with a zig-zag edge. The belt is placed just on top of the hips.

THE second dress is also from the same house. It is an afternoon model of dove gray georgette with a very long skirt. The bodice opening in front is edged at one side with a wide revers which ends a long scarf at the back. Fitting snugly over the hips, the skirt finds ample fulness in the pointed flounce attached at a point shortly above the knee.

FOURTH ESTATE PAID TRIBUTE

The Fourth Estate was paid tribute by the head of a great American business which seeks aid from the specialized intelligence of the Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing Company, in an address by William A. Thomson, director of the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, over KDKA last night.

The salute was interspersed with musical selections recalling the time in 1815 when Napoleon, back from his exile in Elba, had slipped out of Paris. The British government and people were anxious to learn whether Napoleon had joined Wellington. A news gatherer arrived in England a day before the official reports were received, telling of Wellington's victory at Waterloo.

Mr. Thomson declared the United States a nation of newspaper readers. "It is your demand to be informed that keeps an army of newspaper workers in never-ceasing action, circling the earth with an endless stream of communications."

INSURANCE MAN ENTERS PRISON

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 26. (AP)—Roy C. Toombs, president of the defunct International Life Insurance Company, was incarcerated here at the state penitentiary late last night after the Missouri Supreme Court had overruled his motion for a rehearing of his case.

Toombs was convicted and sentenced to a three-year term for unauthorized and fraudulent over-issue of the insurance company's stock. He also was charged with wrecking the company by removing $ 500,000 of its assets.

Toombs was given the number 26140 and will be assigned to a cell and an occupation. Today the financier who was charged with juggling millions of dollars in his operations, will exchange a $10 bill for brass money, the currency used by convicts in the penitentiary.

HALT FILIPINO WEDDING WHITE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 26. (AP)—The ruling of Superior Judge J. A. Smith that Filipinos are of the Mongolian race and therefore ineligible to marry whites in California was declared by legal authorities here today to have opened the way for invalidation of more than 100 marriages performed in this state.

Authorities said the ruling did not automatically invalidate marriages of Filipinos and whites performed since the passage of the state miscegenation law, but that it affords legal grounds for invalidation proceedings to be brought in individual cases.

The ruling was returned yesterday by Judge Smith in granting a permanent writ prohibiting issuance of a marriage license to Tony V. Moreno, 24 Filipino, and Ruby Robinson, 22-year-old white girl. The writ was requested two weeks ago by Mrs. Stella A. Robinson, mother of the girl, who contended the prospective bridegroom was a Mongolian. The state law prevents a Caucasian from marrying a Mongolian or a Negro.

There was a [illegible] humming [illegible] hung up.

Yearns for Hollywood

"No, Steve, she said everything was fine. She said I wasn't to worry about a thing."

"Well, then, why borrow trouble?" asked Steve. "Run upstairs now and try to get some sleep. You have a big day ahead of you tomorrow. Maj. Badminton is coming up from Los Angeles to talk to you."

Maj. Badminton had been Sheila's lawyer at the time she divorced Ellsworth Nettles.

"I'm going back with him, and at the end of the week I'll drive up here and get you and Sheila," Steve went on. "You don't have to stay here every minute of the time you're establishing your residence, you know. You can take a lot of trips with me and Sheila . . . Yosemite Falls and Lake Tahoe and the redwood forests and Death Valley and—"

"What about Hollywood? I'd like to see Hollywood," Lovejoy cried, her gray eyes shining like stars in the lamplight. "Steve, I've longed to go there ever since I was knee-high to a grasshopper! I've read about it in the moving-picture magazines until I think I could find my way around it blindfold!—We'll drive down there, won't we, Steve?"

He nodded, smiling at her enthusiasm. "Yes, if we can get Sheila to go. She loathes the place," he said. "She'll kick if we try to get her past Santa Barbara."

The next morning at breakfast Lovejoy spoke to her about going to Hollywood.

"You won't like it, Lovejoy," she said lastly, glancing up from her plate. "But it's only a hundred miles from Santa Barbara. You and Steve could drive down there and back in a day—and have hours to spare besides."

And so it was settled.

Sheila Hardened

Maj. Badminton came the next afternoon and [illegible] sat in the cool shadows [illegible] of the ranch house and [illegible] him all her troubles for two hours.

He went away late that night assuring her that she would have her divorce in a few months without any doubt. "And if that husband of yours tries to make any trouble," he said, shaking hands with her, "we'll just threaten him with his own affair with the Shane woman."

It seemed odd to hear him speak of Nottie and Tom in that way—that husband of yours," and "the Shane woman."

Steve went away with him.

On Saturday morning he came back. He came back in a huge black and white touring car decorated with California license plates.

"I went up to Santa Barbara and got your car," he told Sheila. "The caretaker wasn't any too keen about letting me have it. I imagine he and his wife have been having a fine time, driving it around the country."

Motor Trip

Lovejoy found herself wondering how she would feel when Tom married Norrie Shane—if he ever did marry her.

She probably wouldn't care very much, she decided. Tom and Nottie and the old life seemed very dim and far away now.

That night after dinner he put in her regular long-distance call for Aunt Em. But the circuits were busy at first, and later the operator reported a two-hour delay on all calls to the east.

"You'd better cancel the call, dear," he said to Lovejoy at half past eleven. "We're starting at five in the morning, and you ought to get some sleep. It's a long drive down to Hollywood and back."

So Lovejoy cancelled it and went to bed.

"I suppose it's silly to call up every night," she said, covering a yawn with two slim fingers. "Aunt Em would surely wire me here if anything went wrong."

At dawn she and Steve started for Hollywood in the big black and white car.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, February 27

ACCORDING to the predominant lunar transits this day may be memorable for a singular visitation involving the environment and change of interests as they relate to corporations or secret organizations. There is a menace of fraud and duplicity against which unusual precaution should be exerted.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of irregular experiences of an intriguing nature, with probability of fraud, deception and subtlety against which much precaution is counseled.

A child born on this day may be disposed to gain its ends by means of stratagem and expediency rather than open methods. Its general outlook on affairs may be visionary and impractical unless otherwise grounded.

SHOPPING.

On my first visit to the chummy shop I am "dearied" like a pal. There is great and sympathetic astonishment when I cannot afford the dress I like. Surely I have a boy friend who will buy it for me.

I am afraid this is a bit flattering to one who could never attract a playboy who showers orchids, emeralds and ermines upon ladies of convenient conscience.

In the exclusive shop I feel just like a tug that has drifted into the lane of great ocean liners and is being approached by an iceberg!

In the self-service shops I am always yelling for help, being so far in a dress I cannot get out and so far out I cannot get in.

SOVIET ARRESTS 45 IN PLOT

MOSCOW, Feb. 26 (INS.)—Forty-five members of the Independent Ukrainian League have been arrested at Charkov by the G. P. U. on charges of plotting the assassination of the bolshevist rulers of Soviet Russia.

Among those whom the prisoners are accused of having marked for death are Joseph Stalin, general secretary of the Communist party and real dictator of Russia; Voroshiloff, commander-in-chief of the red army; Kamenev, member of the Supreme Economic Council and Petrovsky, president of the Ukraine.

Despite all repressive measures of the Soviets, a powerful independence movement has been smoldering in the Ukraine for a long time.

AIRMAN KILLED IN MIMIC WAR

By WILLIAM PARKER

ABOARD U. S. S. TENNESSEE, via Balboa, Canal Zone, Friday, Feb. 21.—(Delayed in transmission.)—Ensign W. McMullen, U. S. N. R., was killed today in a spectacular aerial accident while "enemy" planes from the airplane carrier U. S. S. Saratoga made a bombing "attack" on her sister ship, the U. S. S. Lexington.

From a height of 5,000 feet McMullen dived at the Lexington, speeding 250 to 300 miles an hour. At 300 feet, when McMullen pulled his plane sharply out of the dive, his ship disintegrated, wings and tail surface breaking into small bits.

After the completion of two weeks of intensive and secret war maneuvers, the battle fleet, as the "enemy," was preparing to attack the western entrance of the Panama Canal. The fleet was proceeding in battle formation with the submarines in the vanguard, while the destroyers were throwing a protective smoke screen about other craft in the fleet.

Senate, Starting Economy, Cuts Hoover Fund

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP.)—Something at least already has been done toward reducing prospective appropriations.

When President Hoover recently asked for a reduction of some hundreds of millions in pending proposals, he himself had pending a recommendation for $50,000 for expenses of the American delegation to a conference at The Hague next month on codification of international law.

Today the Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted to cut exactly in half the $50,000 allowance proposed by the President.

Nevin A. Cort, 63, Ill for Year, Dies

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 26—(AP.)—Nevin A. Cort, 63, former district attorney of Westmoreland County, died last night at his home at Mt. Pleasant following a year's illness. He first served as assistant district attorney in 1910. He was elected district attorney in 1917 and was re-elected in 1921.

Moscow-America Flight Is Planned

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(INS.)—An airplane is being built in Berlin for a proposed Moscow-to-America flight, according to an announcement today by George King of Fairbanks, Alaska. King said he and two companions planned to fly from Moscow via the northern route from Asia across the Bering Sea.

ORDERS SAFETY DOORS ON LIFTS

An ordinance requiring owners of buildings served by elevators to equip the car with safety doors which open will prevent the elevator from running, is to be rigidly enforced by Director of Public Safety Clark, according to a letter he has sent to all violators of the ordinance in Pittsburgh.

$100 DAILY FINE

The ordinance provides for a fine of $100 a day for each car run without the required safety doors. According to Clark violators include some of the largest office buildings and department stores in Pittsburgh.

The Director's letter gives violators 90 days in which to equip their cars with the doors. Failure to do this will be followed by drastic action, he says.

The ordinance provides that Class A cars shall have elevator car doors on not more than two sides. Such openings shall have sliding or rolling doors or collapsible gates. Such doors or gates shall be equipped with the electrical or mechanical device so constructed and installed that car will be held immovable when the doors or gates are open.

DANGER INCREASED

"In these days," Clark says, "when long skirts are again becoming the vogue, the ordinance is especially necessary. The vacuum caused by the rise or fall of an elevator can easily suck a skirt-edge into the outer mechanism or wedge it between the car and the shaft. The prospect of such an accident forces me to believe I am serving the public's best interests by enforcing obedience to the law."

Seton's Daughter Bride of H. M. Chase

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(INS.)—Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Mercer Chase were on their honeymoon today, following their wedding here yesterday. Mrs. Chase was formerly Ann Seton, daughter of Ernest Thompson Seton, noted naturalist and writer. She was divorced recently in Reno from Hamilton Cottier, Princeton professor. Chase is the son of Charles A. Chase of Denver.

They will reside in New York.

COOLIDGE RESTS ON RANCH

The former president and Mrs. Coolidge have no definite plans for the remainder of their stay in Southern California, which will be concluded Monday.

NATURAL RELIEF FOR MOST PREVALENT DISEASE

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Eaten by Millions Daily to Prevent Constipation and Anemia

Constipation has been truly described as the curse of modern life. Its poisons cause countless ills—headaches, listlessness, indigestion—often serious disease.

Yet it can be relieved and prevented in an easy, pleasant, natural way. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, eaten daily, is guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. It adds the roughage to your diet that sweeps the system clean of all waste and insures regular elimination.

This delicious ready-to-eat cereal also helps prevent and relieve anemia. Scientific research shows that it is rich in iron—nearly all of which is absorbed, building red blood and bringing the glorious color of health to the complexion.

Isn't it much wiser to relieve constipation with this healthful cereal than to take pills and drugs that only give temporary help and are often dangerous?

Be sure to add Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to any reducing diet. Doctors recommend it.

If you wish to bid goodbye forever to constipation and its companion physical troubles, just begin eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Your grocer has it. It is served everywhere—in restaurants, hotels and dining-cars. With cream or milk is one popular way to eat it. When sprinkled over cereals or soups, it adds flavor, as in cooked foods. Soak it in fruit juice. Whatever the style of eating, it is equally effective. In the red-and-green package—made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Because of ACIDITY

Think of those restless nights and loggy days you experience. Think of those "headachy" afternoons and those spells of "nerves" and despondency that come on you and make you feel "what's the use." Acidity does more than cause acid-indigestion, with sourness, burning and gassy fullness. It sets up fermentation and putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal, which steal your "pep," aggravate your nerves and make you so restless at night that you can't sleep.

Magnesia Oxoids, a marvelous new acid-corrective, discovered in Germany, deals with acidity in the right way! Upon contact with the acid in the stomach, Magnesia Oxoids generate nascent, or active, oxygen. The "live" oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus, checks putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal and stimulates the activities of the intestinal walls, which aids the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary to the true correction of acidity.

5-Day Acidity Test

To see just how "acid" you are make this test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids from Dow Drug Co., or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal for five days and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If the results don't more than amaze you, return the balance of the Oxoids to the druggist and he will refund your money promptly and in full. API

—What Price— LAZY APPETITE

"Dear, are you not glad you followed my suggestion when I urged you to try S.S.S. for your lost appetite?"

HAVE you an indifference or loathing for food, or do you really enjoy mealtime?

Fads and fancies come and go. We must be reasonable. You can't afford to wreck your body by "killing" an appetite given you by Nature to nourish your body.

You must really enjoy your meals and assimilate them to restore the waste of the body. Don't expect a strong, sturdy body and a keen mind to carry on if you do not enjoy your food. It just can't be done. Friends, happiness and business success may depend on a keen appetite.

Many thousands have turned to S. S. S. when the appetite signaled danger. It is a time-tested remedy . . . purely vegetable. Easy to assimilate. Pleasant to take. It will do much to restore the natural appetite. It will not act instantly, but, be assured, when taken according to directions, it will usually bring back your desire to eat and enjoy your food. This you well know is the basic step for health. Simply reason it out for yourself and you will agree that it is the practical way.

And remember, S.S.S. will help you get your blood-cells back up to normal. Then that sluggish, let-down feeling and skin troubles will disappear. You should sleep soundly. Firm flesh should take the place of that which was once flabby. You should feel strong. Your nerves become steady.

S.S.S. gives to Nature what it needs in making you feel like yourself again. At all drug stores in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

PAYS GREAT TRIBUTE TO HERBAL FLAXOLYN

Miss Rose G. Miller, well known as head of the Boston Health Products Centre and author of the book all health seekers should read "Light on Dietetics," including an introduction by the former Dean of a leading New England University Medical School. Miss Miller calls Flaxolyn a wonderful health tonic.

Boston Diet Expert, Author, Sees Suffering Thousands Finding Joyous Freedom From Ailments Due to Intestinal Poisons

"Flaxolyn comes to the timely aid of our people," stated Miss Miller. "Great armies of men and women struggle feebly through life burdened with ill health. We simply do not know HOW to live."

As she states so ably in her book, "Human beings never were intended to be meat-eaters. Our colon is too long, our liver too small." Billions of decay germs enter here—all the blood and system with poisons bring pale, pimply skin, unpleasant breath, indigestion, gas, loss of appetite, headaches, weak spells, run-down, tired-out feeling, even rheumatic aches and stiffness. The kidneys are strained, the back aches, limbs are sometimes swollen and rest disturbed nightly. Flaxolyn has been given an unprecedented ovation because of its might and power in bringing the joy of healthful living to such people.

"As a health tonic Flaxolyn is amazing," continues Miss Miller. "Persons in despair, whose cases have failed to respond to ordinary medicines, have benefited by correct diet and Flaxolyn. I BELIEVE FLAXOLYN IS THE GREATEST MEANS OF TREATING THESE CASES."

Natural Power of Flaxolyn Revealed by Renowned Health Exponents

(From Philadelphia Inquirer)

"I am writing to express my gratitude for that which Flaxolyn has done for me. Suffered severe intestinal disorders for several years. My condition has steadily improved through Flaxolyn."

DR. HORACE BOND,
Philadelphia, Pa.

(From Chicago Journal)

"It was a happy day, indeed, for my wife (who assists me), and I, when we discovered the remarkable health properties of Herbal Flaxolyn. Since then I have prescribed hundreds of Flaxolyn treatments with great success."

DR. OSCAR E. LEE,
Olympia, Washington

(From Boston Post)

"I am firmly convinced Flaxolyn is a formula with unusual merit in promoting health. By keeping the body internally clean Flaxolyn brings the attractiveness of flawless skin, clear eyes, and body feeling vigorously fit."

DR. CARL VICTOR,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

(From Los Angeles Herald)

"Some years ago, when I was in personal need of gastro-intestinal health, I used Flaxolyn with most excellent results. At that time I was a Baptist minister. Now I am a naturopathic doctor and enthusiastically prescribe Flaxolyn to my patients."

DR. MIDDLEKAUFF,
Los Angeles, Cal.

(From San Francisco Examiner)

"I have found that Flaxolyn helps to eliminate the irritants from the intestinal and urinary tracts, and by so doing makes possible quick, sound, restful sleep."

DR. GEORGE STARR WHITE, (M. D., LL. D., F. R. S. A., London), author of "Health," "Youth," etc.

(From Cleveland News)

Among the many noted doctors who recommend Flaxolyn is Dr. A. W. Herr, of Cleveland, formerly at Battle Creek Sanitarium. He says: "Flaxolyn relieves in a natural way that dreadful condition called constipation."

Flaxolyn Corrects and Prevents

Flaxolyn is a tried and proven formula — extremely effective where constipation, liver torpidity, impaired digestion or toxic poisons cause undue tiredness, depression, headaches, unpleasant breath, coated tongue, pimply skin, backaches, dizzy spells, gas or pressure on the stomach, general weakness, sleeplessness.

"Eat, Sleep and Be Healthy," Says Portland Doctor

Hundreds of doctors who have used Flaxolyn in the treatment of such symptoms as dizzy spells, liver sluggishness caused by bile deficiency, indigestion, sleepless nights have written enthusiastically in praise of Herbal Flaxolyn. Dr. L. A. Wilson, of Portland, Ore., says: "As an ardent believer in natural correction, I prescribe the use of Herbal Flaxolyn. It is a wonderful aid in attaining normal, healthy appetite. It is an excellent inducement to sound sleep."

English Channel Smugglers.
A French smuggler starts the trouble by double-crossing a companion in crime and by locking his boat and cargo of smuggled goods. The unlucky smuggler, who has been imprisoned through his friend's treachery, manages to win the latter's daughter, and through her aid escapes just as his boat is about to set sail.
Recapturing the vessel, the smuggler kills his enemy and gains English sanctuary by turning over to the authorities a much wanted fugitive from justice.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

HELEN NUGENT and Ben Alley will join an augmented ensemble in presenting selections from "The Love Parade" as the feature of tonight's Philco Hour on WJAS at 10 o'clock.

"Land of the Sky Blue Waters"—one of Cadman's most famous compositions—will be sung by a native Pittsburgher, Chauncey Parsons, during the 8 o'clock concert over KDKA by the Foamers.

Milton Tully, guest soloist with the Oilomatics, KDKA at 7:30, will sing "Deep Night."

Helen Nugent.

Mrs. Harold R. Bridgeville—The canaries, "Blue Boy" and "Dickey" in the morning "Cheerio" program are owned by Miss Elizabeth Freeman, of Washington, D. C.

KDKA has a policy not to permit children under 16 on the air.

BATTER UP!

"Howdy" Clark missed his waffles the other morning when he burned out a fuse experimenting with an AC short wave. His wife, Lois, had the batter up but the griddle wouldn't work.

Mr. Farr's operative No. 202-G reports that Mr. Clark also wore a bow tie and rompers in a roller skating exhibition at an Avalon church recently.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, delegate to the London naval conference, received more than 100 cablegrams from America following his international broadcast a week ago.

George Dibble, famous leader of evangelistic choruses, will broadcast songs and cheery messages over KDKA tomorrow afternoon at 3:30.

DAILY TRUE STORY

This 'Love' Bunk

"YOU should have been named 'Minerva,' you are so wise about everything," Molly Walker said to her sister.

Beatrice Walker laughed at her younger sister.

"Child—as if it took wisdom to size up this thing they call 'love' as anything more or less than plain bunk!"

[illegible] Molly

"Ha[illegible] me the [illegible] goodey-goodiest [illegible] man in the world," Bee demanded.

"You have it! Not every man in the world, my wise sister," Molly replied and turned to her dresser to regard a silver-framed photograph of a young man with sandy, seaskin hair.

"You have picked Buck and here you go and get moony and sloppy and all full of prickly heat over a young chap who looks and acts and talks just like a million other young chaps."

Bee laughed scornfully.

"Laugh if you want to, because you're a dumb but I tell you, it's a love affair isn't like other[illegible] He's adorable and I love him and we're going to get married."

"Sweetie, I wish you every happiness. I hope this young man is different. To me he dresses, talks and moves around [illegible] all the other young men."

"That's because you've never been in love."

"Love——"

"It was [illegible] the world. It was the way Bee Walker said it, that made Molly wrinkle.

Bee [illegible] the word hissed it, stressed it with a vocal shading that would make one think that love consisted of poison ivy, spiders, Joe Miller jokes, castor oil and asafoetida.

Love Almost Divine

"All right, be silly and ignorant. Love is a great thing, almost divine—it is what brought civilization out of savagery."

Molly hesitated. She couldn't remember any more but she had read something like that once and it sounded great.

"Mother for a love, Bee."

Molly was trying to be very impressive.

"Otherwise we'd never be having this jolly argument."

"Bee! How can you make fun of anything so [illegible] wonderful as mother's love story?"

"I'm not making fun, honey. Go ahead and marry Jack—only I thought you were far too wise. My goodness, Molly, you were a top-notcher in school — you ranked A in biology, sociology, physics, all that stuff. And now you let your silly heart go pit-a-pat over just an ordinary male! I thought you were going to be too wise for that sort of thing!"

"What sort of thing?"

"Er—that rot that 'love bunk!'"

An auto horn went "Ta-too-ta-too" just then. Molly leaned up.

Bee Walker watched her glumly.

Bee made a disagreeable sound, as though ill.

"Be right down, sweetness," Molly called.

"That isn't funny," she said, rushing to get her compact.

Molly paused and stared at her sister.

"It is not pathetic—It is normal, it is natural, it is divine to be truly in love, the way I am, and it is hideous and unkind of you. I am beginning to think that you are jealous——"

Bee jumped in amazement.

"Oh, not of me, not that you care for Jack, you're just jealous that I'm younger and have found a perfectly adorable man whom I am going to marry, while your Mister Right Man hasn't shown up at all. Are you afraid he won't?"

"Love is a form of madness Shakespeare or someone said that, Molly, and in low-down but famous words he said a mouthful. You aren't yourself now; you've got this love madness—and it's all the bunk."

"Bee!"

"I said it—it's bunk—get me? B—U—N—K! Now run along to your Jack, poor deluded sister, whom I thought knew that no man has ever existed who was within a million miles of being the equal of a woman."

Washtub Near Altar

"And remember that 'Beyond the altar lies the washtub,'" Bee called out.

Give Beatrice Walker credit—she was sincere, she believed that love was the bunk.

She went to the window and saw Molly hurry out to Jack's gay little roadster. She saw Jack hop out and lift her in. She saw him kiss Molly during the lifting process.

Preparations were made for the wedding.

Since Bee and Molly were alone in the world, save for the protection of a goodly fortune, Bee felt it her duty to talk to Jack Trafton.

"Of course, you'll be good to Molly," Bee said.

"Good to her? Gosh, Bee, I'm crazy about her—I could eat her up! We are made for each other. You bet I'll be good to her."

"Well, for goodness sake, Jack, be sane and normal—nothing palls so quickly as a constant diet of sweets!"

Bee talked with Molly again.

"Remember he's only a man—a man animal. Be resonable with him, feed the brute and don't try to exist on a diet of mushy passion," said the wise Bee.

"You've been reading again, but you're a darn good sister and I'm sorry you haven't fallen in love. It's wonderful!"

"Don't Molly—don't upset me with the mush. I want to be well enough to attend the last sad rites."

"That isn't nice or funny, Bee. You don't seem to understand. I love Jack. I could almost eat him up sometimes. Honestly, he's different, entirely different from other men!"

The Wedding

Bee thought of something to say but wisely didn't permit the somewhat outspoken thought to be spoken out.

She sighed.

Poor Molly thought Bee was secretly heartbroken because she wasn't getting married.

"Honey," she said, "you're a swell sister. Don't you worry, the right man will come along and fill your whole life and soul and being with love."

"BUNK!" Bee shouted.

It was a pretty wedding.

Molly and Jack came back from a month's honeymoon almost deliriously happy.

Bee went with friends to Bar Harbor.

She was home for a while and then went South.

Molly was still happy.

Bee went to Europe and then joined the Slawsons for a trip on their yacht around the world.

Molly had been married two years when Bee came back from the trip with the Slawsons.

They embraced. Molly seemed rather dull.

"Where's Jack?" Bee exclaimed.

"Over at the club—in a tedious tournament."

"Why aren't you with him?"

"I'm with him enough," Molly said, listlessly.

Bee eyed her and said nothing. Later she made inquiries. Everything seemed to be all right with Jack and Molly. They got along like all the other couples, from all she could learn from reliable friends.

Bee drove over a few days later with a man—a stranger to Molly. His name was Marvin Keith. Bee had met him in Cairo, where he joined the Slawsons.

When Molly and Jack dropped in at Bee's a few days later Mr. and Mrs. Slawson and Marvin Keith were week-ending there.

Two weeks later Molly saw Bee and Marvin riding.

Another week Bee brought him over to Molly's to dinner.

Not long after this Molly went over to see Bee. Jack was in town on some business.

Bee's Ideal

"What do you think of Marvin Keith, Molly?"

"Haven't thought about him, Bee. Say, did you read of those new novelties at——"

"But you couldn't see him five minutes without thinking of him," Bee protested.

"Don't try to be funny, Molly." Bee suddenly thrust her left hand forward. A solitaire flashed.

"Bee, you YOU!"

Bee almost simpered.

"Yes, why not?"

"You, you going to marry this Marvin Keith——"

"Marvin Keith — romantic name, and he's so wonderful," said Bee.

"You seem to forget," said Molly, "that no man has ever existed who could come within a million miles of being the equal of a woman."

"Where'd you ever read that rot?" Bee asked.

"My big sister told me that."

"I never! Now really, isn't Marvin wonderful?"

"He dresses, talks, moves, acts like all the other men in the world!"

"Molly! Where are your eyes! Marvin is entirely different! We're madly in love! I can't live without him!"

Molly made a disagreeable noise, indicating illness.

Bee flushed.

"Where did you ever pick up that vulgarity?" she asked. Beatrice Walker, my sister, taught me to do that," said Molly.

"I never! And, my dear, I'm so happy—love is so wonderful!"

"Love," said Molly, "is bunk, get me? Plain BUNK!"

"You're crazy, you—"

"Ho-o-o-nk!"

"There's Marvin!" Bee cried.

She ran out on the porch and tossed him a kiss. Then she ran down to the car. Marvin Keith lifted her in and kissed her.

Molly Trafton, nee Walker, sat down and laughed.

Between you and me, it was a rather nasty sort of laugh.

BULLETIN

Dr. Clarence True Wilson in Collier's)

"At a reception given at the legation of one of the Latin countries, several servants were kept constantly busy filling glasses with champagne. But it was noticeable that most of the drinking was being done by Latin nationals, not by visiting Americans, many of whom seemed to be content not to sample the champagne at all, while others tasted it gingerly by way of experiment."

Dear Aunt Bella—

Here is a couple questions that bothers me a lot and I wisht you would answer them. I am a girl six foot three. Do you think I would look good in green or yellow best?

The other is would you give me a receipt for how to pickle eels' feet? Love and kisses, you big cheese!—Anxious.

Ans.—Aunt Bella does not answer discourteous letters, but if Anxious will kindly step up to Aunt Bell's private office at half after four tomorrow, she will get a smack in the kisser. You mugs who write insulting letters to Aunt Bella had better not get within range of a certain party's foot.

Waste in Our Markets, Council Is Informed

Council has received a report from a special investigation committee of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board to the effect that there is waste and extravagance in the cost of operating Pittsburgh market houses.

It is specifically charged that the payroll item is too great and should be immediately reduced; that rentals are too low in comparison with that charged for similar space by private operators that the city is furnishing its tenants in the Diamond and North Side markets with free heat, light, elevator and janitor service, and the Diamond market with free refrigeration in addition.

It recommends that such services be discontinued, that the South Side Market House be abandoned and turned into a community welfare center, and that Council authorize an investigation by the Real Estate Board of all city-leased property, particularly the leases on the exposition building.

Council, if it has the interests of taxpayers in mind, will give merited consideration to the report of these men whose job it is to make real estate pay for their clients instead of being a loss. It is really highly valuable technical advice of the kind which Council often has paid fees of upwards of $1,000 a day to imported "experts."

Incidentally, the public would like to be advised what Council has done about the charges previously made that expense of operating municipal buildings was outrageously excessive, compared to that of private operation.

Death of Miss Levin Call to Good Servant

A Pittsburgh woman who gave her life to service has been removed from our midst in the death of Miss Sophie Levin, founder of the Mothers' Pension League and one of the pioneers in that branch of welfare work. Miss Levin also had been active in other community work, conspicuously that of directing organization of the women in the canvasses of the Red Cross and first Welfare Fund drive.

Her name especially deserves to be kept in memory because of her work in behalf of the Mothers' Assistance law in Pennsylvania, which included personal appeals to legislators and trips at her own expense to Harrisburg.

Of her labors it can be truly said that they deserve—"Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

Inquiry Proving Trust Owns Power Commissions

Now we learn that the Niagara Falls Power Company has been charging up to users of electric current $30,000,000 of "value" for water from the Niagara River which the federal government gave to the company free.

So Charles A. Russell, solicitor of the Federal Power Commission, said recently to a Senate committee investigating the commission.

Here we have the real explanation of the puzzling fact that Canadian users of Niagara Falls electricity have paid only half as much for current as American users. Yet the current came from plants that used the same water from the same falls.

Canada's share of Niagara Falls power is generated by a public body, the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, owned by Canadian cities which distribute their own electricity to citizens.

The public body has no object in inflating the amount of securities on which consumers must pay interest and dividends in the form of rates. Ontario Hydro and the Canadian municipal plants deliver electricity AT COST.

The Niagara Falls Power Company, according to Russell, claimed a value of $77,000,000 for its properties. He added: "All that we can find in the investment accounts is $32,000,000." The rest is presumably water.

The private corporations distributing current in American cities have similarly watered their stock. The Niagara company demands a liberal return on its whole $77,000,000 of "value." The utility companies demand the same. Public service commissions and courts let them have it.

No wonder the householder in the Toronto district gets a monthly electric light bill half the size of the citizen in the Buffalo district.

And the American is going to pay more as time goes on, the Canadian less. With every merger in this country, stock issues soar. In Canada the money is raised by government bonds, whose total does not increase except when new facilities are added.

As a matter of fact, with rates half ours, the public-owned bodies in Canada are paying off the issued bonds. So in 30 years the Canadians will own their plants free of interest charges. Whoever heard of a DECREASE in the capitalization of an American power company?

This Washington hearing is proving that the power trust owns and runs the Federal Power Commission, as it does the state commissions in the country. For 10 years the Federal Power Commission has failed to enforce the federal water power act of 1920. Facts like the Niagara Power Company's stock watering have long been known in the commission, but were suppressed. It functioned to protect, not the public, but the power companies.

We hope Congress can be counted on to get rid of the present Federal Power Commission and its secretary, and give us a new commission, interested in enforcing the law Congress enacted.

Our National Flower

It's Wild.

America learned the other day that its national flower was the wild rose.

It was news to some of us, who wondered if it wasn't the blossom of the raspberry. But more than a million votes were rolled up to prove it, and a million American voters can't be wrong. Not on this subject.

The wild rose carried every state but Colorado, Florida, Minnesota and Washington. The columbine was a bad second. The violet and goldenrod did not place. The dogwood, daisy and mountain laurel also ran.

Some super-patriots opposed the wild rose on the ground that it was England's national flower, and hence unworthy of the land of the free. They withdrew their objections when informed that the English rose was "cultivated."

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Chain Colleges

"Bugs" Baer

He already has dedicated the Edison School of Technology which was launched during the golden anniversary of the electric light bill.

He will follow it up with a university in every garage.

Henry believes that a chauffeur's license is as important as a raccoon diploma and that every young man should learn a trade.

This will make him unpopular with the young men who smoke cigarets in shower baths and reach back to their hip pockets for more information on any subject.

But it will be an improvement on students when a college graduate will be able to go back to a Ford educational plant for overhauling.

A college student means plenty of expense and by-products to his old man. After he graduates he spends the next five years seeing the world in a hammock.

We certainly would dish out certificates of gratitude if Henry can show us how to run a college graduate for eight cents a mile.

We agree that it is better to know how to vulcanize a hot water bottle than to twang a uke or twitch a zither.

Practical education is better than breathing heavily through a saxophone or painting Japanese butterflies on corrugated silk.

Nobody cares when an archaeologist or student of fractured language goes on a strike. But when a plumber walks out you can be drowned in your own cellar.

We enlist for a course of study in Hank's incubators of manual training. And when we graduate we want a paid-up and non-assessible diploma.

We can give Hank plenty of good advice about starting his universities. First build the football stadiums. Then purchase the raccoon coats. Select a good Mother Goose college cheer.

After that, you organize the glee clubs, arrange for the Christmas holidays and pick out college colors that make beautiful sofa cushions.

The Ford system of Model T colleges will get off to a fine start. The fact that Henry is inaugurating a brand new school means that he will have no old grads around to hamper him with well-meant but very stale advice.

MR. EDISON'S SECOND WIND

By Herbert Kaufman

Mr. Edison has planted his first two acres of goldenrod, is putting the last licks to his production equipment, and expects to begin delivery of artificial rubber within a few months.

Time cannot wither nor age destroy his infinite variety of enthusiasms. At eighty-three, he exhibits the identical qualities of pertinacity and resourcefulness which distinguished him at thirty-eight.

And thereby proves that old age—as Ninon de l'Enclos, George Bernard Shaw and Mr. Justice Holmes might attest—is a relative equation and a matter of personal opinion.

His unimpaired self-confidence should act as a TONIC on several million of Mr. Edison's juniors, who are interpreting the appearance of a few gray hairs as summons to DEMOBILIZE ambition and retreat to the DUMP-HEAP.

IT dramatically challenges the balance sheet's recent tendency to conclude that the human mind has little to offer progress—or PROFIT—after its FIFTIETH year.

Mr. Edison is running on his SECOND wind. Folk who DON'T give their second wind a chance to show goods, aren't setting PACES or winning RACES in ANY state of life or on any stage of affairs.

They don't attain distinction or celebrity as sprinters or sluggers or scientists—what have YOU in view?

They're operating by SET schedule—following grooves, not inspiration.

Opportunity promptly scratches them from her visiting list, and business drops them from the PAYROLL, not so much because their potential utility is ended, but because anybody who hasn't demonstrated initiative, purpose or originality, at the high tides of energy and creative capacity, isn't likely to disclose a push-button on the nether side of meridian.

MR. EDISON needs no liniment for his thinking muscles. Very useful people are never conscious of birthdays or occupational strains; concentration doesn't notice the calendar.

FATIGUE is the poison of obscure and UNSYMPATHETIC tasks; it chiefly affects the JOB-COWARDS who STICK to uncongenital lasts and cower in perpetual fear of a weekly lay-off, rather than risk a SINGLE adventure in independence.

Those are the tasks that hag a man at his PRIME and prematurely loot his forces.

The essential difference between the notable and the mediocre is a matter of courage and perseverance.

Burning the candle at both ends isn't NEARLY so wearing as squandering vitality on DISTASTEFUL or PIFFLING objectives.

ALL the big things ever achieved on earth were brought to pass by men who KEPT ON when they were TIRED. Motors aren't wracked by continuous HIGH SPEED; it's the INTERMITTENT stops and starts and the ceaseless application of BRAKES that rattle 'em to pieces.

The indefatigable plugger is longest lived. The head, like all other tools, deteriorates fastest and rusts quickest in IDLENESS.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD! ∴

By Elsie Robinson

HAVE you ever tried to walk with a frantic youngster clinging to your knees? Didn't get ahead very fast, did you? You'd certainly hate to do all your walking with such a handicap—

And yet that's exactly the way most of us stumble through life!

Here we are, all set to go! So much to do . . . so many schemes to get under way . . . and we'll have to hurry, for others are getting ahead of us—

But we can't move! For, every time we start, that pesty youngster grabs us . . . squalling with fright, shrieking with rage, gripping us with desperate, stupid stubbornness! An outrageous nuisance . . . why doesn't someone call it off? Because there's no one to call it off.

That pest belongs to us, and to us alone! It is our own childishness which hangs to our knees and keeps us from going ahead . . . our own childishness which we should have completed years ago, but which we still carry with us, into our maturity.

Why don't we get ahead? We like to blame God . . . or Society . . . or our Families. But we ourselves are to blame. It is the Spoiled Brat in each of us that breaks our stride.

You know how it is with yourself. Those sudden spasms of anger . . . that panic that besets you in a crisis . . . your dread of making changes . . . your resentment of criticism . . . the difficulty of making decisions. You know now these traits bother you. You resent them and think, wistfully, how wonderful life would be if you were free of them . . .

"But there's nothing I can do about it!" you say, with a resigned shrug. "I'm just made that way."

Snap out of it! Be your age! You're not made that way. These tiresome traits are not crosses which God has given you to bear. They're hang-overs from your childhood . . . infantile habits which you should have outgrown as you've outgrown snuffling and giggling and biting your nails.

Really, mature people do outgrow such traits. Those quiet, strong, efficient people whom you so often envy, those people who seem never fussed, who do so much work with so little friction . . . they didn't just happen to get that way. They worked to get that way. They deliberately "put aside childish things" and learned to think and act like men. And now they have full control of themselves. No fractious child blocks their stride.

You can be as free as they, if you'll follow the same method. Face facts. Stop blaming God. Blame yourself . . . blame the Spoiled Brat in yourself. Get rid of that Spoiled Brat. Get out of your own way!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

ON the other hand, the alga is sheltered within the mass of mould-threads and has more chance of getting the moisture and mineral salts that it needs than it would if it lived exposed on a rock or on the bark of a tree. It is noticeable that the algae that have been enslaved by lichen-fungi are larger than free-living individuals of the same species, much as our domesticated cattle and sheep and pigs are fatter than their wild relatives.

As a result of this mutual assistance the lichens can grow in places which are too barren to support any other form of vegetable life.

H. G. Wells

The fungi are the dominant, active members of the association; it is they that capture the algae that are enslaved. The specific characters of a lichen—its form and color and so forth—depend on the particular kind of fungus that it includes.

Moreover, the lichen-making fungi are completely dependent upon their captives, and they cannot live by themselves (unless they are carefully nursed in the laboratory in a nutrient solution).

The algae, on the other hand, are involuntary partners; they belong to species which normally live independently by themselves. Often several different kinds of lichen-making fungus make use of the same species of alga; there is one kind which uses two different species.

Perhaps the relations between fungus and algae will be most clearly understood if we consider the methods of reproduction of lichens. Of these there are three.

The first is simple fragmentation; if any part of a lichen be broken off and if it blows or tumbles or rolls into a suitable situation, the fungal threads will sprout and grow and the algae will multiply, so that the fragment gives rise to a new lichen plant.

The second method, slightly more complicated, is by means of special and characteristic buds called soredia. A soredium is a tiny spherical particle, consisting of a number of fungus threads surrounding and holding one or more of the algae; it is like a party of settlers moving to a new region, the fungi being the active members of the expedition and the algae corresponding to such livestock as they take with them to insure a food supply when they arrive and settle. Soredia are liberated in thousands from the lichen as a powdery mass, and are distributed by wind.

In the third method the fungal part of the lichen forms spores after the usual manner of fungi, without the participation of its algal associates. Such spores, when they settle and germinate, are faced with the immediate necessity of finding and entangling appropriate algae; unless they alight in a place where such algae may be had in plenty they perish of starvation.

Reproduction by soredia is evidently the safer method, since the fungal emigrants take a stock of algae with them; on the other hand, soredia are large and heavy compared with fungus spores—although to our eyes they are minute, powdery granules—so that the spores can be carried for much greater distances by the wind, and spread the species through a wider range.

The largest and most elaborate lichenous plants are found in the tropics; from thence they range to the otherwise bare rocks of Arctic and Antarctic coasts and to mountain heights uninhabitable by other plants. They are even found on rocks far above the snowline.

In Arctic regions lichens are more plentiful than any other form of plant and such forms as the "reindeer moss," "iceland moss" and "tripe de roche," are important articles of food, both for reindeer and for hard-put men.

In the barren steppes stretching from Algeria through Palestine to Tartary the manna lichen growing on the ground in little, pale, greyish lumps, is eaten by men and beasts—indeed, by saving the Israelites from starvation during their wanderings this species may claim to have had more influence on the present political and economic situation of the world than any other vegetable organism.

Before the extensive use of aniline dyes the lichens were used as sources of pigment: litmus, the acid-alkali indicator of chemists, is an example.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—In the late afternoon on Fifth Avenue and in the Grand Central zone the whirr of pigeon wings often rises above the hum of late home-going traffic. The two big nesting places are in the eaves of the public library and around the spires of St. Patrick's.

Just before dusk, when traffic desolation is complete, they circle and spiral in drifting swoops to the street where they flutter, coo and strut in pigeon-toed dignity. At such times there are perhaps a half hundred regular bird feeders who distribute crumbs from the curbs.

One long-bearded patriarch frequents Bryant Park and is known as "the pigeon man." He sits on a bench at eventide with his poke of stale bread and at times is almost covered with pigeons, and when departing they follow him until he is lost in traffic.

Most people believe the flocks of mid-town pigeons, like Topsy, "just growed." But the truth is they came originally from the pigeon farms that dot the roofs of tenements on Second and Third avenues. There are more than three hundred of these farms.

Such farms have netted roofs, but pigeons escape from time to time, become strays and join Fifth avenue flocks. One of the interesting sights of the East Side on Sundays is the crowd that goes marketing for pigeons, some to be eaten and some to be domesticated. Pigeon pie is an East Side favorite.

When the Waldorf was torn down 10,000 pigeons were made homeless. George Boldt, the original owner, believed pigeons were lucky, and not only provided nesting places and roosts for them but ordered they be well fed.

Another popular landing place for pigeons is the aristocratic esplanade of the Plaza fountain. Here the guests from fashionable hotels bring food morning and evening. While there are other pigeon sections, the largest is between 59th street and 23d.

Houdini's most famous illusion was known as "the needle trick." It baffled audiences all over the globe. The magician to all appearances swallowed a pack of needles one by one and then a long piece of thread. His mouth and throat could be examined under heavy lights. He would then swallow a big drink of water and pull out the thread with all the needles completely threaded. The secret has been exposed and is being sold in souvenir shops for 50 cents. It is so simple a 10-year-old boy may master it in a short while.

An amusing fakery in testimonial advertising is noted in the subway. A throat ease remedy displays the picture of a gorgeously beautiful lady. She ballyhoos the virtues of the product in first person. The trick is the picture is unidentified and no name is signed to the testimonial.

Thousands of hurdy-gurdies that once ground out vagrant tunes on New York streets have shrunk to a handful in the past few years. Many reasons are advanced for the evanishment. The radio is chiefly blamed. But the man who farmed out the instruments to the majority of strolling pianists says the sole cause is the increasing traffic thunder that dins the music. Hurdy-gurdies gathered their biggest rewards in the skyscraper areas of congested business districts. Today they are rarely heard above the first floor.

Those who toil at street window desks and have had the daylights scared out of them by an organ grinder's chattering monkey popping over the sill to their shoulders may be glad to know there are only three left in town.

From a medical magazine: "Men and women of sedentary habits, especially writers, should indulge a food orgy now and then. If sipping weak tea and nibbling at poached eggs, they should try a large stack of wheat cakes and the change may bring a flood of rich and marketable ideas."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

WHEN you are tempted to grumble because you are not getting all you deserve, stop and consider what would happen if you did.

You are displeased because all the favorable "breaks" you think your position and intelligence warrant are not coming your way.

How about the unfavorable things which you deserve and what if they should come to you?

You know you have been connected with different escapades after which if you had received what you deserve it might have caused you a lot of trouble.

Everything considered, you have come out pretty well.

Life with most people is the same—grumble about conditions that are displeasing and give very little thought to those things which bring joy or a degree of pleasure.

Take your own life thus far.

If all the "bad breaks" were balanced against the good ones, which would have the balance of weight?

When tempted to grumble, think of the good luck you have had that you didn't deserve, the happy events and not the sad ones, and your viewpoint will change.

You will realize you have been fortunate and have had a fair deal.
